International Paper buys Sweetheart warehouse

There is some double-barreled good news in Wilmington this week. The nine-acre Sweetheart Plastics warehouse has been sold to International Paper. IP will move the New England headquarters of its Carter-Rice, the Dowd Company division to Wilmington, with about 250 jobs. Carter-Rice, a leading supplier of printing papers, will consolidate operations now located in Boston, Woburn and Braintree.

The news was announced by Town Manager Michael Caira at the end of the selectmen's meeting Monday night.

The second part of the good news is that Sweetheart will move its warehousing operations from that facility into its former manufacturing plant in Wilmington Center, which closed three years ago.

The building which is being sold to IP is located on the west side of the tracks near the intersection of Main and Lowell streets. The sale price is said to be between six and eight million dollars.

Access to the plant presented a major hurdle in the sale. Sweetheart had received special permission from the MBTA for a railroad crossing when the warehouse was built about ten years ago. That permission had to be transferred to IP. The original concept when the facility was built was that it would receive incoming stock by rail, from the Sweetheart manufacturing plant a half mile away.

Since the closing of the manufacturing plant, all access has been by truck. Sweetheart has continued to use the warehouse as a distribution facility, a function that will now be housed in a portion of the former manufacturing plant. Although the manufacturing equipment has long since been moved from the plant, Sweetheart has been readying the plant for the new role for some time.

Warehouse sold

The Sweetheart Plastics warehouse at Main and Lowell streets is to be sold to International Paper. It could be described as being "behind the car wash" but is really behind everything from O'Brien & Feely Tire to the Salvation Army store. The massive building covers nine acres.

ACE aires education concerns

by Jeff Nazzaro

Advocates for Children's Education (ACE), presented the Wilmington Board of Selectmen with 350 post cards signed by residents supporting an override. The political action committee is campaigning for a Proposition 2 1/2 override to reopen the Boutwell Elementary School to alleviate classroom overcrowding. In the process, ACE, represented by Chairperson Carol Neville and Treasurer Agnes Fiumara got more - or less - than it bargained for in its bid for selectmen support of an override.

"I'm absolutely appalled," selectman candidate and Wilmington Police Sergeant James Rooney said to the board for what he considered the "pull[ing] over the coals" of the ACE representatives. "If we want our kids to get a quality education...support this [override], support [ACE]," he said.

Selectmen Chairmen Chester Bruce countered, saying "we, as the board of selectmen have to represent all the people."

Earlier, Bruce denied Neville her request for a formal poll of the board as to where they stand on the override question.

"You're not going to poll my board tonight," he firmly stated, but went on to say that ACE does not "have time to wait another year [for an override] because [overcrowding] is going to be twice as bad next year."

Selectmen Gerald Duggan and Robert Cain have both said they favor an override, while Selectman Michael McCoy has waffled on the subject. Selectman Diane Allan was not present at Monday's meeting.

The school department is shooting for a maximum of 25 children per classroom. Superintendent of Schools Dr. Geraldine O'Donnell, who attended Monday's selectmen's meeting, estimated the number of classrooms operating with more than 25 students this school year at between 10 and 12.

"We really should have opened the Boutwell for this school year," Dr. O'Donnell said. "Next year we have 67 elementary classrooms; 17 of those will have 27 to 34 [students] to one teacher."

The Massachusetts Department of Education, through the Education Reform Act passed for this school year, recommends a ratio of 17 children to each instructor, according to O'Donnell.

While many in town seem concerned about the quality of education in Wilmington's public schools, there also seems to be a lot of concern among the town's taxpayers about property tax hikes attached to passage of an override - increases of a little more than $40 on average.

"I've talked to grandparents, I've talked to parents," Bruce said. "Everyone is concerned, but if the dollars and cents aren't there..."

Kodak moments have changed. At the Pack 136 Blue and Gold Banquet parents immortalize their Cub Scouts with video now-a-days. Dan Hurley, Sharon Caira, Bob Jensen and Penney Hurley were supposed to watching their children on stage but as you can see they were either trying to figure out the equipment or watching the guest photographer. (Former Good Guy and Scouting enthusiast Larry Noel commandeered the Town Crier camera to take this photo.)

Cub Scout Pack 136 held their Blue and Gold Banquet on Friday evening at the Villanova Hall. Several activities take place including elevating Cub Scouts to the rank of Bobcat. Receiving a swatch of paint on his cheek, marking his achievement (parents got painted, too) is Paul Chisholm.

Route 38 resurfacing contract awarded

Representative James R. Miceli (D-Tewksbury/Wilmington) has announced the awarding of the Route 38 resurfacing contract in Wilmington to Sealcoat, Inc. of Hingham.

The project, scheduled to commence April 1, 1994, will replace the surface of Route 38 from the Tewksbury town line heading south to Wilmington Center at the Route 62 Intersection.

Work hours are to be from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. in order to minimize traffic congestion during peak commuting hours and to protect the safety of passing vehicles.

"This project is desperately needed," Miceli commented. "The harsh weather this winter has only added to the problem...I'm glad I have been able to play a part in this project."

Rep. Miceli pushes for local aid

Calling it the the "best news local budget planners have had in years," Representative James R. Miceli (D-Tewksbury/Wilmington) says action in the House to adopt higher levels of local aid at such an early stage of the budgeting process was a double victory. Local budget writers will not only receive accurate information early in the process, but will also receive more state funds to pay for municipal services.

By a vote of 105-37, the House approved the resolution to commit a record $2.156 billion to cities and towns for next fiscal year. Miceli revealed that Tewksbury is targeted to receive $7,417,727 next year while Wilmington should receive $3,723,665.

"I am commited to doing all that I can to bring back every local aid dollar possible to Tewksbury and Wilmington. I am thrilled to have won the major fight for local residents," said Miceli.

Miceli added that the passage of the resolution should greatly help local budget writers. Because the actual state budget does not get passed until July, local budget writers, who usually draft spending plans in May or June, were not aware of the exact amount of state aid they would receive. This often meant that cities or towns would have to adjust their budgets to reflect any anticipated changes in local aid. The adoption of this resolution will make the writing of municipal budgets much easier.

Having been adopted in the House, the resolution now needs Senate approval before becoming official.

MEDICAID, TAXES AND LONG-TERM CARE

Item: nursing home care is expensive. It is only sometimes deductible as a medical expense, depending on the level of care needed. Continued medical care is deductible; simple custodial care is not.

Only the very rich can afford to pay for nursing care out of pocket over a long period. The government probably can't afford it, either. But those who are comfortable but not very rich - those with estates between $100,000 and $1,000,000 - may want to be able to protect some of their assets for their heirs.

That's why there is long term care insurance to cover the expenses of nursing home and home based care. Best bet: buy in one's 60s, before premiums increase sharply. Plan on 10 percent of income for coverage; don't go into savings. Be sure to have at least three years coverage. Under the new tax laws, oldsters will need to cover at least 36 months of nursing home care before Medicaid benefits can kick in.

Town Pulse & Opinion

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:
Where are our candidates for school committee? Just because they are running unopposed, does not mean they can't discuss the issues. Mr. Surran is well recognized in Wilmington as being involved in many youth programs. Ms. Leger is an educator. Both candidates have had ample opportunity to form an opinion about the Proposition 2 1/2 override, yet neither has voiced an opinion or contacted anyone from Advocates for Children's Education.

All four candidates for selectmen have either contacted or publicly supported the override committee. I would like to know where Mr. Surran and Ms. Leger stand on this issue, and what they feel they can contribute to the school system.

Carol Neville

Dear Larz:
I felt it necessary that I respond to your recent picture and article that shows the Wilmington police taking down my political signs on alleged public property.

Just for the record, it should be noted that the signs were not on public property and therefore the signs should not have been taken down. Second, once the signs were removed, I received no notification from the police department of the infraction. I would have never known that the signs were removed if it wasn't for the Town Crier.

In a not so perfect world, everybody and every group makes mistakes for sure. The issue here is the way in which it was handled and the perceived reason for their removal. Speaking of removal, as fast as my signs are going up, someone or something is taking them down. I truly believe that political signs will not elect a candidate for public office, but let's play fair and leave my signs alone. Please give me a fair fighting chance. Fifty signs costing over $350.00 are not to be taken lightly. Finally, I did get my signs back from the police department. All's well that ends well.

Dear Larz:
Taxpayers beware! Vote No on the Proposition 2 1/2 override on Saturday, April 16. Opening the Boutwell School is not only totally unnecessary, but will be extremely costly to every taxpayer. Consider the costs they don't tell you about:

1. The total cost of opening the Boutwell School.
2. Cost of new teachers to staff this building.
3. Cost of new equipment i.e. computers,desks, textbooks, etc.
4. Cost of new library staff and equipment i.e. books, tables, etc.
5. Cost of new building principal.
6. Cost of new building nurse and equipment.
7. Cost of new cafeteria staff and equipment.
8. Cost of new custodial staff and equipment.
9. Cost of new office staff and equipment.
10. Cost of additional phones, electricity,water, gas, and oil.

These are ongoing costs. These are not one shot expenses. These costs will increase yearly. Bet on it! Ask yourself: Who benefits most ???

Concerned Taxpayer

Dear Larz:
I am writing in response to the blue paper propaganda sent out by the ACE.

Taxpayers, it is time for a reality check. Let's separate fact from fiction:

Fact: No, I repeat, No classroom in Wilmington has over 30 students. (I got this information from the Roman House) Any classroom with more than 25 students has a certified teacher aide in the classroom at all times.Therefore, the student/ teacher ration is less than 15:1. Not bad, huh?

Fact: Current enrollment for the elementary schools is 1665 students.

Projected enrollment for 1994-95 is 1695 students (according to the ACE). The difference is 30 students (across all elementary schools - we have three schools, therefore, one could figure an increase of 10 students per school) Does this justify opening a building? Does this increase of 30 students warrant a $500,000 increase in taxes? I don't think so.

Fact: No nurses at any school are forced to work out of converted bathrooms.

Fact: No student attends music classes in the bathrooms.

(What is this obsession with bathrooms??)

Fact: The Wildwood School nurse's office was lost when the principal expanded his office. Why was this allowed? Was this a smart decision? Why should the taxpayer have to pay through the nose for stupidity???

Fact: One school does have three lunch periods per day. What is so harmful about having three lunch periods scheduled at one school? Why is this damaging to students? When I was in that school - many years ago, we had three lunch periods scheduled. Hmmm.

Has the school department considered some creative solutions,or have they just decided to pick our pockets again? I have a couple of solutions: 1. Use the empty first floor space at the high school to house all the kindergarten classes. The pre-school currently functions very well at the high school. 2. Move the intermediate students to the Shawsheen and relocated the elementary students to the two intermediate schools. I am sure that taxpayers and school department personnel could come up with even more solutions than I did. Why not make it a contest?

It seems that poor planning and poor use of available school space are the problems, not the lack of available space. Do we need a Proposition 2 1/2 override? Who will really benefit from this override? I don't think it will be the students.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:
Being a lifelong resident of Park Street, the upcoming election is of particular interest to me this year. Although I don't yet know for whom I will cast my ballot, I do know this, Tony Capuano wouldn't get it if he were the only one running. The reason for this is simple. He is running on the premise that Bob Cain's vote to reconsider funding for the Park Street Sewer Project cost the town $500,000. What he neglects to mention is who was going to pay the other six and a half million. Answer, the residents of Park Street. We were looking at paying the bulk of the tab in the form of betterments, so that industry on Concord Street could have their sewerage. Better for who Tony?

Aren't you the man who stood there at the meetings saying what a raw deal you were getting from the MWRA? Weren't you the one who repeatedly said that if you knew what you were getting into you wouldn't do it again? Aren't you the one who advised people not to hook up because of the skyrocketing costs involved?

Back then you had my ear but now I see you as just another hypocrite selling out to big business for a vote or two.

How much did you pay when the sewer came by your street? We were looking at $10,000 even if we didn't hook up! Thank God Selectmen Cain and Bruce saw this injustice and took a stand for us, the people of Park Street. We don't need sewerage! Industry needs sewerage, let them pay for it. They can afford it; we can't.

Flip-flapping on issues is no way to get elected Tony. It's a sign of a serious character flaw. The last thing this town needs is another friend of Big Business poisoning the town government system, like they've poisoned the water supply.

The people of the Town of Wilmington voted to rescind funding for the project Tony, not Bob Cain. Your gripe is with us, not him. The scary part of all of it is that in a town of 18,000 people, only about 300 cared enough to go to the meeting. The 150 who were going to profit from it and the 156 who were going to pay for it.

And then after the vote, the chairman of the Planning Board, Mr. Richard Longo,wrote a letter to the editor which likened us to terrorists, David Duke, and the I.R.A. I just wish there was someone in our government system who would publicly say that what he wrote was wrong, but to date noone has. That's why I don't know for whom I'll cast my ballot. Sometimes I think you're all blind as bats. Big business has too many friends in local government already and as a resident with a very high stake in the outcome of this election I'm pleading with the voters, please don't let another one in.

Signed:
A worried resident of Park Street who can't afford to donate $10,000 to big business

Dear Larz:
Wilmington has before it an opportunity to better itself, in the most important fashion. Through its children!

The Proposition 2 1/2 override, being discussed, is important to all residents, not just parents with school age children. The latter group has obvious motivations in trying to get this through. The less obvious reasons are as follows:

1) The better the school system, the more alluring the town. This translates into $$, as anyone who owns real estate knows. It's not the $43.00 (est.) increase in taxes you need to worry about, it's the thousands lost in equity because the town's worth, as a whole, has gone down. Decreased housing marketability, due to a wanting and needy school system, will affect your pocketbook.

2) The children currently being taught are the same group who will someday make the decisions for our world. Personally, I'd want that education to be the most excellent that it can be.

On this point, it may seem as though a slight has been made toward the Wilmington teachers. Let me clarify. We have a dedicated group of professionals. They love our kids and they are doing their best with what they've got. But, can a carpenter build a good house if you give him wood but no tools? Let your imagination go to a place where our kids can actually get more of our teachers attention because class size is down to reasonable.Let's give the teachers the tools they need to turn our children into "grand homes" and effective leaders.

3) We currently have a superintendent who cares! Her goals are clear for our school system. She is highly marketable and could go and be wanted just about anywhere (In my opinion). Think of the message she will get if the override does not pass. What reason would she have to stay if her goals can not be achieved because a town puts its children last. Let's rally behind a good thing. The people who comprise our system need to know we're with them.

Lastly, if you're a parent who works, in or out of the home. If your life is harried and you can't attend all the PAC meetings and give all kinds of time, because you're spread so thin already, then do the one thing that will really count, in terms of your child's education. Go to town hall on April 16 and to the high school on April 23 and cast a favorable vote for Proposition 2 1/2. It will be a contribution that will have lasting value and permanently put your mark on the child's life. Thank you!

Sincerely yours,
Julie DePiano

Dear Larz:
I urge all of Wilmington's voters to vote No on the Proposition 2 1/2 override question which will be on the ballot April 16. The problem is not that we don't have enough money, but that the money we generate hasn't been spent wisely.

So how did we get into the current problem, where the School Committee and Town now want another $575,000 of our money? First you have to understand that about 40 percent of the money the town spends, of $13,400,000 will go to the school budget. Of this amount, 75 percent to 80 percent or more typically goes to teachers' salaries. Thus, negotiated contract increases have a huge effect on, a) the amount of money the School Committee/Town must come up with, b) the number of teachers it can retain or c) both a and b.

Now, let's go back to June of 1991. In that month the School Committee recommended that the town offer teachers a huge 18 percent increase over three years with, it seems, little idea on how to pay for it. Do you remember 1991? We were in the depth of the worst economic recession since the Great Depression. Unemployment in Wilmington that June was 10.6 percent, a full 1.1 percent over the state average. People feared for their jobs. What was the School Committee thinking? Why were the hard pressed people of Wilmington simply expected to come up with this kind of money? Somehow, surprisingly, the town was able to cut staff and find additional revenues these past several years, but now that original contract decision has finally come back to haunt us! There is not enough money today to pay for the new teachers and school changes that the School Committee says they need to address the enrollment problem.

So what do we do? In business, past poor decisions by management are addressed by the new management and sometimes result in tough decisions to further cut staff and programs to bring costs under control. Business doesn't pass the results of poor decisions onto its customers and I don't think the Town of Wilmington should pass its poor decisions onto the backs of its taxpayers.

In closing, I would just like to say that I have absolute faith that the current School Committee, Town Manager, Selectmen and Finance Committee can collectively come up with a fair and equitable solution for the education of our children without the need for additional tax dollars.

Please vote No on the override.

Paul A. Nicoli,Jr.

Friedrich Hujer had several bright remarks as he viewed Reading Municipal Light's display. He spoke of America needing to learn to conserve. As an example he cited how in Europe gasoline costs about $5.00 per gallon, and how in America electric dryers just vent energy to the atmosphere.

Agfa moves to conserve energy

Agfa Corporation recently held an Energy Awareness Day at each of its buildings in Wilmington. The focus of this program is to maximize energy savings in all facilities without adversly affecting the work environment.

The program included displays on saving energy at home and in the workplace, a demonstration of various types of energy saving lights, and a fact sheet on the pertinent energy facts related to each facility. Highlight of the program was a visit by the Reading Municipal Light Dept. all-electric vehicle.

As a part of the energy conservation program, Agfa installed lighting controls in all its buildings to turn off lighting during unoccupied periods. The company also developed an energy awareness program to promote energy conservation.

The participants included Friedrich Hujer, president of Electronic Prepress systems, Ken Mastrullo and Roger Stevenin of Facilities, Dan Cannon of Environmental Services and Safety, Patricia Bouchard of the 80 Industrial Way energy team and MRO buyer for purchasing, and Anne Marie Brennick of Reading Light.

Cold cuts without shortcuts.

Boar's Head products are made the same way they were made 80 years ago. Before mass technology messed things up.

Cured the old-fashioned way, trimmed the old-fashioned way, sold the old-fashioned way.

Without artificial colors or flavors, without scraps or trimmings, without cereal or extenders. Boar's Head isn't pre-sliced, pre-wrapped, pre-anything. It's sliced fresh right in front of you. The way deli meats were meant to be.

Insist on our fine quality deli meats and cheeses. Because at Boar's Head, we would never sell you short.

25 years ago — Wilmington

The March 20, 1969 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Richard Gustafson, Boy Scout Troop 56, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gustafson of Oakridge Circle, earned the rank of Eagle Scout. He was pictured with his parents following the award ceremony, described as "one of the finest Courts of Honor ever held in Wilmington. Americanization awards were presented to the new Eagle Scout and to Eagle Scout John Daniel.

The Wilmington Company of Minutemen, now sporting the exact number of men in the original company was formally reconstituted and joked that other than the churches, their's was "now the oldest organization in town."

In a complete "switcheroo" the editor of the Town Crier urged "cards, gals!" for Nosey Nancy, a patient at Winchester Hospital following surgery.

According to Nosey Nancy, Paul Godzyk, candidate for selectman, didn't spend his last dime on his campaign, and would use the "saved up pennies" for expenses involved in his plan to offer free rubbish removal to all the churches until July 1.

Nancy Forrest of Lake Street was pictured preparing for her lead role (Eliza Doolittle) in the upcoming WHS Concert Choir's presentation of "My Fair Lady."

Roger Hayden of Hayden Mica Company, Eames Street was pictured as he stopped to admire a "dummy cop with child" which was displayed for the first time at a Rotary Club luncheon.

The display, to be offered for exhibit in the town's lower grade classes was intended to help instill confidence among young children for the men in blue.

Hopeful players Brian Hurley, Glen Lucas and Louis Perry were pictured as they signed up for Little League tryouts. Approximately 370 youngsters were "just waiting for the snow to disappear."

Elia's Market offered fresh, homemade potato salad, 49 cents a pound; bananas, 10 cents a pound and lobster salad, 89 cents a half pound.

At Lucci's Market one could purchase 48 ounces of Wesson Oil for 79 cents; pork chops, 68 cents a pound; Wise Potato Chips, 49 cents a pound.

Second annual Wilmington – Florida reunion

Enjoying the March 19 reunion of Wilmington residents and former residents held March 19 in Florida: the long and the short of it, Ted Wicks and Don Protopapas.

Teri (Ryan) Hinckley, Bea (Weatherbee) Randall, Louise (Weatherbee) Smith and Patti Ward enjoy a "day in the sun" during the recent reunion of Wilmington and former residents held in Florida.

Saturday, March 19 lived up to the best of Florida Chamber of Commerce claims. There was a fog bank a bit out on the Gulf of Mexico, but right at the edge of the Gulf at Fred Howard Park in Tarpon Springs, it was sunny, about 80 degrees,with just a slight breeze.

It was there that approximately 175 Wilmington people gathered for a picnic lunch. They greeted old friends and some even greeted friends they had left in Wilmington only a week or so ago. Such hugging and kissing and snapping of cameras! Most people turned up at the reunion after reading the announcement in the Town Crier.

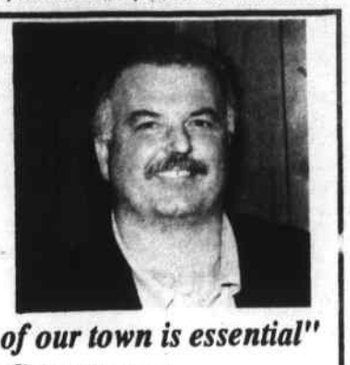

Those attending: Lloyd and Louise (Wicks) Perkins, George and Maud Arsenault, Jim and Peggy (Lienhard) Burke, Carl (Bucky) and Hazel Backman, Dick and Martha (Rooney) Gray, Jim and Fay Downs, Tom Lacey, Vern and Bea (Weatheree) Randall, Bob and Lorraine Bousfield, Bob and Betty Cavanaugh, Joe and Flo Leverone, Bob and Barbara Brown, Norman and Lorraine Smith, Alan and Irene Taylor, Malcolm and Bernice Butler, Richard and Zenaida Pellerin, Pete and Pat Clancy, Ken and Judy Spinelli.

Wilmington warrant articles explained

by Jeff Nazzaro

(part one of a four part series)

Town of Wilmington election and Annual Town Meeting are fast approaching. The following is a break-down of the first 15 of the 60 articles contained in the Town Warrant.

Article 1 concerns the town election, to be voted on Saturday, April 16. Polls will be opened from 10:00 a.m. until 8:00 p.m. Registered residents of Precincts 1, 2 and 5 are to vote at the Town Hall Auditorium and members of Precincts 3, 4, and 6 vote at the Wildwood School.

The remaining articles are to be decided on at Annual Town Meeting, which will be held in the Wilmington High School Gymnasium on Saturday, April 23, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

• Article 1 concerns the town election, which will be held to elect: one selectman, one moderator, two school committee members, and one member of the regional vocational technical school committee, all to three year terms of office; and to elect one member of the housing authority to a two year term.

Residents will also vote on whether or not "to assess an additional $575,837 in real estate and personal property taxes for the purpose of funding the operation and maintenance of he Boutwell School..." Voters will be asked to respond "Yes" or "No."

Articles 2, 3, and 4 have been described by Town Manager Michael Caira as "routine housekeeping" articles.

Article 2 allows committee reports to be heard and acted upon.

Article 3 is to see if the town will vote to appropriate money for the paying of unpaid bills of years past.

Article 4 would allow the town treasurer "to borrow money from time to time in anticipation of the revenue of the financial year beginning July 1, 1994..."

• Article 5 pertains to the Town Budget, specifically, to see "how much money the Town will appropriate for the expenses of the Town and the salaries of several Town Officers and Departments..." and to see how that money will be raised, i.e. by taxation, transfer from available funds, etc.

• Article 6 is "to see if the town will vote to raise and appropriate a sum of money for the purchase of new and replacement capital equipment..." Specifically, the replacement of five police cruisers, the purchase of a heavy-duty modular-type ambulance for the fire department and the purchase of two one-ton, two cubic yard, heavy-duty dump trucks for the DPW. Monies for all but the last would come from the general fund, according to Caira.

• Article 7 is for the allocation of funds "for the purchase and installation of one stair lift for the Shawsheen Elementary School..."

• Article 8 is for the raising and appropriation of funds for the construction of sidewalks "in various locations throughout the town..." Caira cited the cost of such at just over $61,000.

• Article 9 is another "housekeeping" article. It will determine if the town will vote to transfer from available funds in the FY 94 budget sums for the operation of various town departments. This eliminates the necessity of Special Town Meetings to do the same - it can be done at Annual Town Meeting.

Articles 10, 11, 12, and 13 are voted on annually.

• Article 10 would serve to raise and appropriate $5,000 for the observance of Memorial Day and Veterans Day in the town.

• Articles 11 and 12, and 13 would raise and appropriate $750,000 each for the renewal of the Marine Corps League Clubhouse lease for use as MCL headquarters, the renewal of the Nee-Ellsworth Post 2458 lease for use as VFW headquarters, and renewal of the American Legion Clubhouse, Inc. lease for use as American Legion Post 136 headquarters, respectively.

• Article 14 is "to see if the Town will vote to appropriate, by transfer,...$250,000 from prior years' overlay surplus...to fund overlay deficits for the fiscal years 1989 and 1993." No money would be raised through this article.

• Article 15 has been satisfied by the board of selectmen. It provides that the town accept as Town ways the layout, as described by warrant, of portions of Earles Row, Gatehouse Lane, Allenhurst Way and Oxbow Drive.

When neighborhood issues raise questions of equity and fairness...
BOB CAIN provides answers.
When taxpayers need a friend...
BOB CAIN represents us.
When the integrity of town government came under attack...
BOB CAIN protected our interest.

The bride is the daughter of Brian and Ann-Marie Turley of Melrose. The groom is the son of Robert and Jean George of Wilmington.

Attending as matron of honor was the bride's sister, Jennifer Rogers of Centreville, Virginia. Other bridal attendants included Kimberly George and Jeanne George of Wilmington, sisters of the groom; and friends of the bride, Kelly Halley of Woburn, Wendy Roach of North Charleston, South Carolina and Andrea Berkowitz of Burke, Virginia. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Michael George of Wilmington served as best man for his brother. Performing usher duties were Jason Turley of Melrose, brother of the bride; Thomas George of Wilmington, brother of the groom; David George of Woburn, cousin of the groom; and friends of the groom, Michael Halley of Woburn and Robert Ferro of Wakefield.

Readings were given by Mark Rogers of Centreville, Virginia, brother-in-law of the bride, and John Driscoll of Boston, uncle of the groom. The blessing was presented by Robert Brown of Sanford, Maine, uncle of the bride.

The bride wore a diamond white chantilly lace, Illisa by Demetrios gown, with long sleeves, off the shoulder neckline and cathedral train. Sequins and pearls adorned the entire grow. A lace tiara accented by Austrian crystals, sequins and pearls with a fingertip length, circular veil complemented the ensemble. She carried a cascading bouquet of lilies, roses, queen Anne's lace, orchids, stephanotis and ivy. Bridesmaids wore iridescent emerald green taffeta gowns similar in style to the bride's.

"BERMUDA - AN EMERALD ISLAND?"

Bermuda will look like an Emerald necklace 22 miles long and barely two miles wide. It's actually a string of coral islands. Only 580 nautical miles from Hatteras in North Carolina, Bermuda's lapis waters are so clear you can actually see the submerged reef which surround the islands as the plane banks on approach.

Bermuda's heritage spans almost four centuries. History buffs will appreciate many of Bermuda's old monuments to the past. The town of St. George is not only charming with its colonial cottages and antiques, but also claims the oldest Anglican Church in the Western Hemisphere. Gibbs Hill Lighthouse and Fort St. Catherine also offer visitors a peek into Bermuda's 16th Century History. Visit the refurbished Royal Naval Dockyard, built after the Revolutionary War, it's now home to Bermuda's Maritime Museum as well as restaurants and shops.

Water sports lovers can keep their days filled with exhilarating activities both above and below the water's surface. Avid golfers can challenge their skills by teeing off at any of 8 seaside courses. And, for the not so active, enjoy the pink sands and crystal clear waters. "What about the romantic?" you say. How about Getting Married in Bermuda? There are 3 island wedding consultants to help you.

All Around Travel offers a variety of information and tour packages that will fit your budget and help you decide where to stay and what to do. We are conveniently located at STATION SQUARE, 203 Jefferson Rd., N. Wilmington (Rte 62). Office hours 9 - 5 Mon - Fri and by appointment anytime. Call us at 658-2313.

HINT: April marks the beginning of the island's high season. And, with is comes packages and savings offered by many of Bermuda's hotels.

HOW MUCH INSURANCE?
QUESTION: How much insurance should I carry on my home?
ANSWER: The question as to how much leads to another one: "Who must decide how much coverage to carry?" The questions are related and the answer to the second one is YOU.
You'll have to do some leg work and find out how much it would cost to replace the structure at today's prices. Cost of land does not figure into this equation. An appraiser or your insurance agent can help you with replacement cost advice. After you come up with replacement cost, most companies consider 80% of this figure a good determination of full insurance.

Her education in the field of art has been significant: Kutztown University, PA; Ohio State University; Art Institute of Boston, together with many private studies and workshops. She is a member of a number of area art organizations, including The Copley Society of Boston, the Cambridge Art Association, the Concord Art Association (with a Distinguished Artist designation), the Art Associations of Lexington, Marblehead, Reading and Winchester. She has won many prestigious awards in exhibitions in the Boston area, Baltimore and Washington, DC. Her studio is located at 43 Pleasant Street in Woburn. McCoy took the opportunity Monday's meeting provided to launch an attack of sorts on the local teacher's union.

"Are these teachers willing to take a [pay] cut?" McCoy asked. "They average $45,000. They work 180 days," he said.

McCoy seemed to dismiss the logic of reopening the Boutwell School when, he said, the school department "...might not have teachers to fill it."

McCoy sought answers regarding ongoing collective bargaining with the teachers' union - answers O'Donnell, or anyone else for that matter, were not at liberty to discuss. O'Donnell called teacher/school department negotiations and the reopening of the Boutwell as two separate issues.

"I would not characterize the teachers' union as being uncooperative," Town Manager Michael Caira stated. "And let's leave it at that."

Chairperson Carol Neville and Treasurer Agnes Fiumara, of Advocates for Children's Education (ACE), the political action committee campaigning for a Prop. 2 1/2 override presented 350 post cards signed by Wilmington taxpayers in support of their cause to the board of selectmen Monday night (photo by Jeff Nazzaro).

Wilmington Sports Town Crier

Adrienne Fay is.....

By James Pote

There have been and always will be many great high school athletes. There will always be athletes who excel in just one sport. There may also be many athletes who will excel in many sports. Wilmington's Adrienne Fay is such an athlete. Although she has only been attending W.H.S. for two years she is their best athlete.

Fay went to Bishop Fenwick her first two years of high school. After realizing that she wanted to be with her friends she decided to transfer to W.H.S. Her decision gave great deal of pleasure to her coaches, teammates and most of all Wilmington fans. Perhaps her greatest fans are her parents.

"We just didn't feel that it (Bishop Fenwick) was a better academic school. We didn't think she was treated right. I'm really glad that Adrienne switched, Wilmington High School is a much better school," said Adrienne's father Cyril Fay.

Adrienne was an immediate hit in the fall of 1992. She made all conference as a junior and a senior as the center halfback for the girls varsity soccer team. In 1993 she was named the Eastern Mass. Most Valuable Player in the all star game.

"I don't know why, but I enjoy playing soccer more than the other sports," confirmed the sports star who has not yet decided on where she will attend college next year.

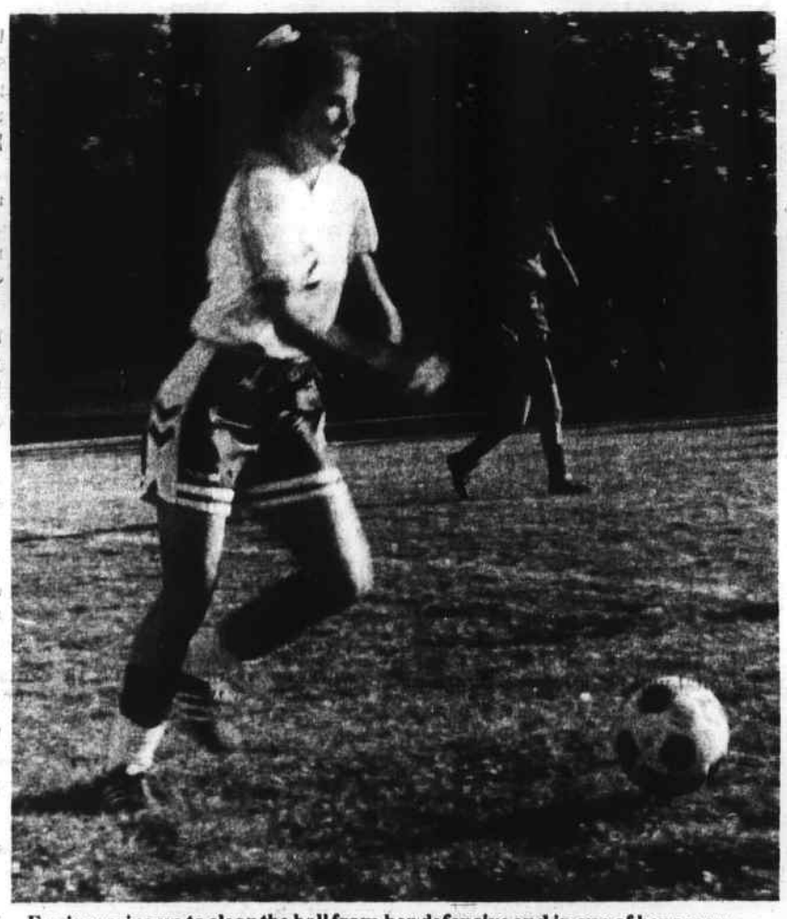

"I enjoy watching soccer a lot also, it's just really enjoyable to watch the sport grow," added her father.

As the programs shifted to the winter sports, Adrienne enjoyed two fine seasons for the basketball team. This past season, she was named an all conference star as well as participating in the all star game. She averaged over 14 points a game despite missing the first few games due to an ankle injury.

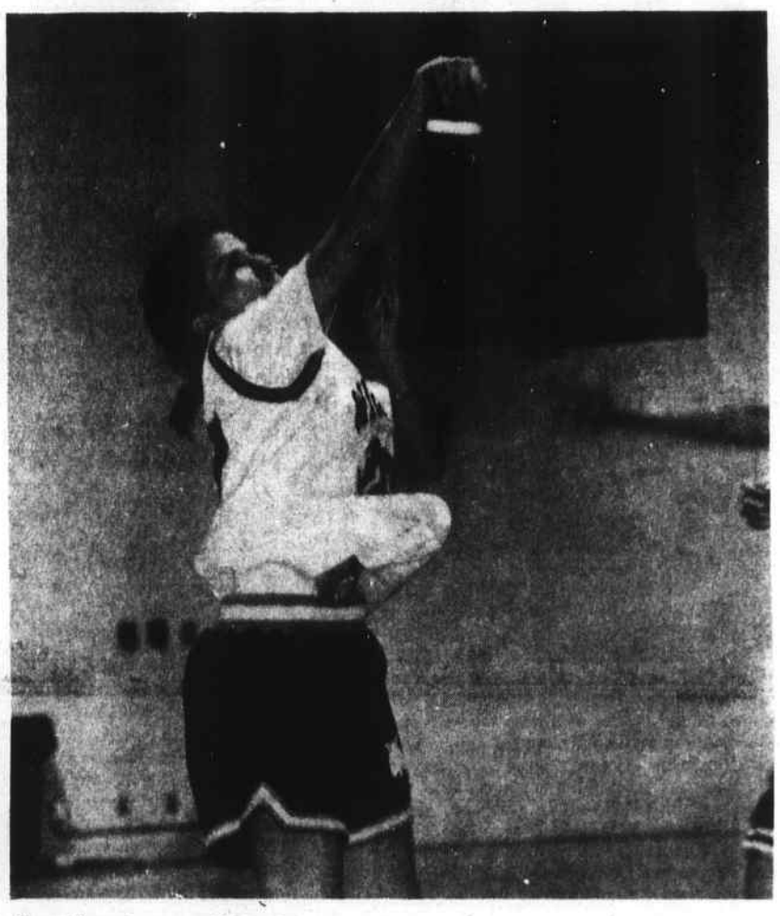

Last spring was the most significant in her high school athletic career. At the beginning of the softball season, there were experts who predicted the girls would finish in third to last place. Adrienne and her teammates proved them wrong, very wrong.

"Last year was a lot of fun. I know it will be a lot harder to repeat as champions this year, but I really think we can do it," said the ace pitcher.

Their season got off to a bang. A quick 7-1 record which included a no-hitter by Adrienne over Andover sure got the season started on the right foot.

After they clinched a tournament birth and the Merrimack Valley Division, the girls went on to beat Mount Graylock in the division two State Championship game. That has never been done in the history of W.H.S.

Adrienne enjoyed a fantastic 21-2 record as the pitcher. That included back to back shutouts of Danvers and Matignon in last year's tournament battles. She also posted an very impressive 0.88 earned run average throughout the tournament play.

"Adrienne is probably in the top female athletes ever to play at W.H.S. There have been many great female athletes such as Meghan Donnelly, Judy O'Connell and Mary McNaughton to name a few. But, for some one who has been a league all star in three sports in two years is pretty good," offered softball head coach Paul Lyman.

However, with a few holes to be filled with this year's team, including a catcher, it will be a tough task for the girls to repeat.

"Sure, it's going to be tougher and a lot more pressure. But, if they are having fun and enjoying the game that's all that counts. If they pull off half of what they did last year, that will be a successful season," said Cyril Fay.

"As a pitcher Adrienne is calm, cool and collective. She never gets nervous. That is a great confidence booster for her teammates and that is also a big key as a pitcher" said Lyman. "Off the field she is a clown. But, that's also great. You have to have fun. She is also always willing to do things to help out most especially with clinics in helping little kids. She not only is a great and talented athlete, but a great person, too".

This writer knows of no other athlete who has so changes the sports scene in such a short time.

Adrienne will surely be a member of the W.H.S. Hall of Fame. Get your ballots ready!

Can Sox overtake Bluejays?

by James Pote

Baseball is about to begin yet another season and this year's brings hope for what should be an exciting year. There are new divisions and a new playoff system in which a second place finisher could make it to the World Series. Here's a preview and my predictions for the upcoming year.

East

Baltimore: The Orioles were very busy in the off season. The acquisitions of Rafeal Palmeiro, Chris Sabo, Lee Smith and Sid Fernandez should be able to put them over the top.

With one of the best and fastest outfielders in (Brady Anderson, Mike Devereaux and rookie Jeffrey Hammons) the Orioles should be at the top with plenty of stolen bases and spectacular defensive plays especially the latter with Cal Ripken as the shortstop.

A big key for the Orioles is the production and health from designated hitter Harold Baines and catcher Chris Hoiles. If these two are healthy, this lineup will be a force.

The only question for the birds is their pitching. Expect big years from both Ben McDonald and Mike Mussina. However, if Sid Fernandez doesn't come back right away from his injury expect a trade for a big name pitcher to fill his void to overcome the two time defending champs. The bullpen is also solid with the additions of Lee Smith and Mark Eichhorn.

Boston Redsox: I'm probably the only one who has high hopes for the hometowners. The addition of Dan Duquette as the general manager was the biggest steal of the winter. He brings a whole different approach. Speed and defense which will result in a lot of more wins for the Sox.

Otis Nixon will bring a lot to the club. Expect 50 or so stolen bases, a lot of bunts, a lot of great diving catches and not many RBI's or extra base hits. But, that's what a real leadoff hitter is supposed to do anyway.

Mike Greenwell will have his normal year with his baserunning and defense blunders, while a right handed power hitting rightfielder is what is keeping them from being a serious contender. However, a platoon of Billy Hatcher and Lee Tinsley will do fine until hopeful signee Ron Gant is healthy.

The biggest key is Andre Dawson. If he can hit 20 or so homers and knock in at least 85 runs, the Redsox will be in the hunt all the way. With Dawson being healthy, look for Mo Vaugh to put up even better numbers (40 plus homers and 120 rbis). Don't expect miracles from new catcher Dave Valle.

Roger Clemens should come back to his old form. He probably won't receive another Cy Young award but 18 wins would be fine. Frank Viola will have a big year in his final year of his contract, while Danny Darwin and Aaron Sele should be able to get 25-30 wins between them.

The bullpen is also a big key. Jeff Russell has to be healthy and effective. Greg Harris cannot be overused. Ken Ryan must have a big year while Tony Fossas has to continue to get left handers out.

Toronto Bluejays: With early injuries to many key players such as Duane Ward, Roberto Alomar and Joe Carter (even though Alomar should be ready by opening day) it looks as if this year will be more of an off the field team rather than an on the field team. The incident with pitchers Dave Stewart and Todd Stottlemyre getting arrested didn't help either.

However, the Jays are remembered for their rent a player for a month sweepstakes. That may happen but it will probably be too late.

Carlos Delgado who is moving from catcher to left field will go neck to neck (no pun intended with Hammond's injury) with Jeffrey Hammonds for the rookie of the year award. Paul Molitor and John Olerud will also have their usual big years but the pitching is in desperate need of some help.

Dave Stewart is going downhill. Al Leiter will not last the year without going on the disabled list at least three times and there are a lot of questions concerning the bullpen.

New York Yankees: The Yankees had a lot of career years from players who will probably not have the same production this year. The pitching has a lot of question marks most especially the bullpen. Terry Mulholland was a great acquisition. Expect him to be the ace and Jimmy Key to falter.

It also looks as if both Don Mattingly and Wade Boggs are slowly going downhill. They both had great years last year but at least one of them will not enjoy this season. Mike Stanley can only dream of putting up the same numbers as he did, as well as rightfielder Paul O'Neill.

However, second baseman Pat Kelly and centerfielder Bernie Williams will have all star caliber years.

Detroit Tigers: "I think I can, I think I can," is the message for the Tigers. The Tigers are hoping they will be able to contend before they are receiving their retirement checks! The Tigers have a very potent lineup but how long can Kirk Gibson and Lance Parrish stand on their own two feet - never mind the field.

Their starting pitching is always in jeopardy. Are Mike Moore and Bill Gullickson actually for real? Moore is their opening day starter - good luck bullpen. Oh yeah, the bullpen. Storm Davis, Joe Boever, Mike Gardiner and Bill Krueger (I don't ever remember any bullpen as bad as this one).

American League Central

Chicago Whitesox: With th young pitchers, the Whitesox w be ahead of this new division f many years to come. Ja McDowell and Alex Fernandez w both win 20 games. Hometowr Jason Bere and Wilson Alvarez w also win 15 each if they both st healthy. That's already 70 wins.

The bullpen has one of t premier closers in Rober Hernandez who will have 40 pl saves. There are questions in wl will join Hernandez.

The Whitesox defense is wh makes them such a threat. With R Karkovice as the catcher and t impressive infield of Thomas, Cor Guillen and Ventura there should l plenty of reasons for smiles f Whitesox fans. That's not eve mentioning the outfield crew Tim Raines, Lance Johnson ar Darrin Jackson (Jackson by the wa will have 20 plus homers and 7 plus rbis).

With great young pitching an great young players of Thoma Ventura and Johnson the Whitesc appear to be the frontrunner for th American League champions. Earl prediction - Michael Jordan wi win the MVP for the Bulls in th 1994-95 season.

Cleveland Indians: The Indian are no longer basement dwellers The addition of Eddie Murray wil make both Albert Belle and Carlo Baerga so much better. Look fo Belle to have 45 homers and at leas 130 RBI's. Shortstop Omar Vizque was the steal of the winter as he wil drastically improve their infield.

Dennis Martinez, Jack Morris (yes, Jack Morris) and Charles Nagy will all have at least 15 wins apiece. But, this will probably earn a wildcard spot, but probably will not get them past the Whitesox.

The experiment of Jose Mesa in the bullpen is a great idea, and look for him to be premier closer.

Will Bere repeat his stellar performance?

Kansas City Royals: A decent team with many holes. Vince Coleman will have a monster year but veterans like Wally Joyner, Greg Gagne, Dave Henderson and Gary Gaetti will all falter.

Mike MacFarlane, Felix Jose and Brian McRae will continue to improve but other than that expect a miracle for the Royals.

As for their pitching for the Royals have four solid arms and that's it. David Cone, Kevin Appier, Tom Gordon and closer Jeff Montgomery will need a lot more help if the Royals are serious about contending.

Milwaukee Brewers: Robin where are you? The Brewers have a pretty good team but many of them went through sub-par years last year. John Jaha will emerge as one of the best power hitters and first baseman in the league.

They do have a young nucleus of hitters to go along with Jaha. Pat Listach, Greg Vaughn and Darryl Hamilton will all improve. Also, the additions of veterans Jody Reed and Brian Harper will help but they too need a lot of pitching help. Early injuries to a lot of their key hitters will have the Brewers off to a slow start which they will not be able to get back at.

Cal Eldred and Jaime Navarro have great arms but with no closer it will be difficult to register wins.

Minnesota Twins: In a rebuilding year the Twins will have their share of headaches. With questions at the left side of their infield and really at first base as Kent Hrbek will be retiring - never mind the pitching. It will be a very long year for the Twins. Catcher Matt Walback and outfielder Dave McCarty have a lot of promise.

As for the pitching, well...they have Scott Erickson, Kevin Tapini and Rick Aguilera. Expect at least two of those to be traded before the year's end.

West

Texas Rangers: With the most powerful lineup in the league, the Rangers will finally get a chance to see the playoffs. Juan Gonzalez will edge out Frank Thomas, Kevin Griffey, Tim Salmon, Albert Belle and Mo Vaughn for the MVP. Expect Jose Canseco to get comeback player of the year with 30-30 numbers.

There are still some questions for the Rangers. Whose the shortstop? Whose the rightfielder? And as always who are the pitchers? If they are able to get another frontline pitcher and stay off the disabled list the Rangers should have no problem winning the West.

Oakland A's: The A's are back. With their solid groups of veterans mixed with their youngsters, the A's should be able to at least contend for a little while. Mark McGwire, Troy Neel and Terry Steinbach will have big years, but Ricky Henderson and Ruben Sierra are on the downslide.

Brent Gates, Craig Paquette and Neel brought a fresh new look for the A's, and there is no reason why they shouldn't have even better numbers.

Ron Darling, Bob Welch, Steve Karsay and Todd Van Poppel will all enjoy solid seasons if they stay healthy. However, Dennis Eckersley appears to be in the same category as Sierra and Henderson.

Seattle Mariners: The Mariners have a lot of potential but a lot of questions also. Is Edgar Martinez back from his nagging injury? Can Rich Amarel and Felix Fermin put up the production both offensively and defensively? Can Eric Anthony come back after a sub-par year? Are Reggie Jefferson and Dan Wilson ready to become full time players? Whose the closer- never mind that whose in the bullpen?

Those are just a few of the Mariners questions to be answered. If their four starters of Randy Johnson, Dave Fleming, Chris Bosio and Greg Hibbard can pitch complete games every time they go out there the Mariners will be champions. But, that will not happen and with the scarce bullpen it will be a disappointment year for the Mariners.

California Angels: A great bunch of solid young hitters in Tim Salmon, Chad Curtis and Eduardo Perez who will all be stars for years to come,but there's another side of the coin - pitching.

Mark Langston and Chuck Finley can't pitch every game. No, I didn't say John Dopson and Joe Magrane.

The Orioles will face the Indians in the first round of playoffs and beat them to face the Whitesox who will beat the Rangers. Look for the Whitesox to beat the Orioles in six games to go on to the World Series.

MVP-Juan Gonzalez, Texas.

Cy Young, Alex Fernandez, Chi Whitesox; Comeback player, Jose Canseco, Texas; Rookie of the year, Carlos Delgado, Toronto; Manager of the year, Butch Hobson (even though I don't like him), Boston.

Mite A's extend streak to thirteen

Steak extended to 13

The Mite A Youth Hockey Wildcats had another busy weekend with four games.In the Dual State League, the Wildcats extended their winning streak to 13 with victories over Wakefield and Malden.

In the game against Wakefield, David Velardo scored the first goal with a nice assist from Anthony Tomasi. One minute later, James O'Neil sent Joseph Luciano in for the goal to quickly make it 2-0.

Nice passing plays from Danny Liberty and Joseph Luciano set up David Velardo for his second goal to make the score 3-0 after the first period.

In the second period, defenseman Matt Porter made a good pass to set up Joseph Luciano's second goal. David Velardo completed his hat trick late in the second period, assisted by Anthony Tomasi.

Mite A's over Malden

The Wildcats had a showdown against Malden Sunday, who trailed first place Wilmington by two points in the Dual State League. The Wildcats struck first when Joseph Luciano scored an unassisted goal.

James O'Neil then made the score 2-0 assisted by Thomas Irwin and Greg Buck. Joseph Luciano's second goal assisted by Andy Berian made it 3-0. The Wildcats continued the pressure and scored five additional goals.

Joseph Luciano added two more, assisted on both goals by Danny Liberty. Also scoring were Thomas Irwin, Andy Berian and Anthony Tomasi. Malden spoiled Paul Sferrazza's bid for a shutout late in the third period.

Wilmington then closed out the scoring with two more goals by James O'Neil and Matt Porter. David Velardo, James O'Neil, Tom Irwin and Mike Rideout and Joseph Luciano each registered one assist. Danny Liberty capped off a good game with three assists.

Mite A's 7 Masco 3

Wilmington started slowing in this Valley League game as Masco took an early 1-0 lead. Late in the first period Anthony Tomasi tied the game, assisted by Joseph Luciano.

Masco scored just before the end of the first period to make it 2-1. Joseph Luciano's unassisted goal tied the game at two, but Masco again took the lead. Paul Sferrazza made the play of the game when he stopped Masco's leading scorer on a breakaway.

Defenseman Greg Buck made an outstanding read of the Masco defense and broke out of the zone and into the offensive end on a breakaway, defensive partner Danny Zuccaro also broke up the ice and put the rebound in the net to tie the game at three.

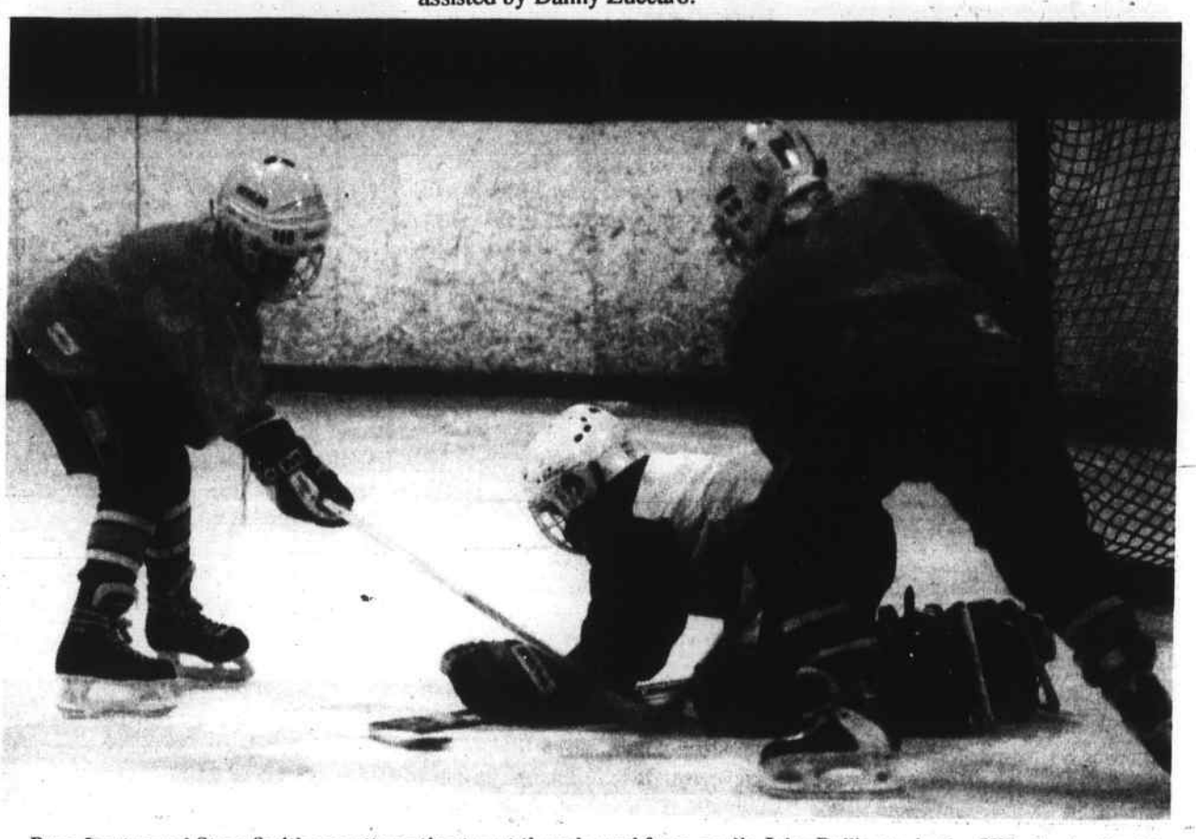

Ten seconds later, Steve O'Dea and Anthony Tomasi sent David Velardo in alone and scored to make the score 4-3. T.J. Duggan increased the lead to two assisted by Joseph Luciano. David Velardo then potted the rebound off a Matt Trimarchi shot and Joseph Luciano scored assisted by Andy Berian. Matt Porter was great on defense, moving Masco out in front of the net.

Mite A's 3 Newburyport 3

The Wildcats had a one hour break between games on Sunday before facing off against Newburyport in a Valley League game. Wilmington scored first as Joseph Luciano fought his way through the defense assisted by Danny Zuccaro.

Newburyport tied up the game late in the second period, but Wilmington took the lead again when James O'Neil made a nice shot to the far corner assisted by T.J. Duggan and Joseph Luciano. Danny Liberty made it 3-1 when he faked the goalie from behind the net and stuffed the puck in for the goal.

Newburyport came back with two quick goals to tie, and Wilmington put relentness pressure on Newburyport but could not score. All in all it was a great weekend for the Wildcats with three wins and one tie.

Ryan Layton and Steve Smith are attempting to get the rebound from goalie John Dell'anno in the Wilmington Squirt C Youth Hockey practice held last week.

Adult Hockey Closing in

by Don Ahern

Week 28 showed that even that the season is coming to a close, every player on each team is playing as if there were scouts in the crowd.

For example, last week Golden State played the Outlaws for first place with Golden State coming away with the win 5-4.

The average age for Golden State is about 40 years. These guys play with the heart and pride of someone half their age, like myself. Golden State's team Captain Butch Fonzi, showed his determination to the love of the game by playing with arthritic knees and a bad back. One has to give him credit at his age.

Simply anyone can play this game at any age. Here's how the rest did: White Team over the Red Team; Team 8 beat the Chiefs and the Ice Hogs over the B-52s.

Standings

Squirt C's split weekend games

By James Pote

The Squirt C Wilmington youth hockey team entered the weekend hoping for consecutive wins on Saturday and Sunday. They are still hoping to get into the playoffs.

On Saturday, the Wildcats took on Newburyport. After trailing by a score of 3-1 with a goal from Ryan Layton, they were still trying to figure out how to pull off this upset. They figured out a great plan as they went on to beat them 4-3.

Jason Riley scored the second goal on a nice wrist shot. Bobby McIver tied the game up at three apiece before Ryan Layton scored his second goal to have Wilmington go ahead for the remainder of the game.

Once again goalie John Dell'anno put in a spectacular performance. He had solid efforts most especially from his defensemen Chuck Osgood, Brian Aldrich and Richie Pallizzola.

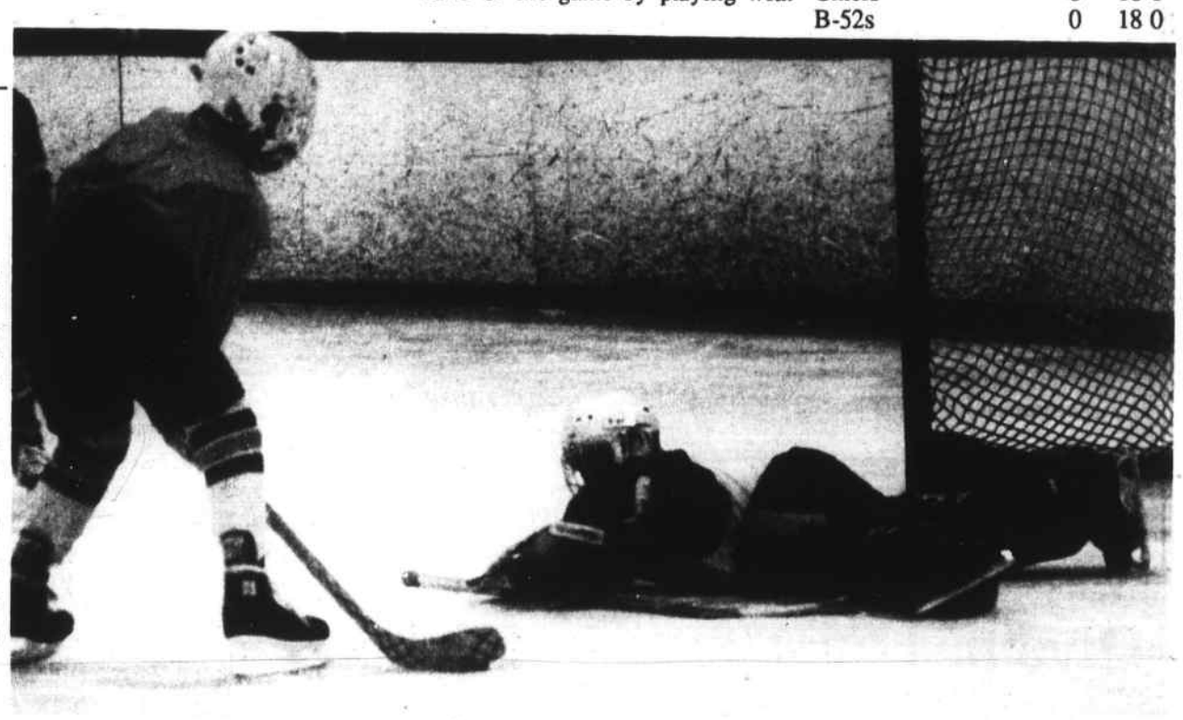

On Sunday morning, the Squirt's fell to Agawam 3-1 on a close game throughout. Ryan Layton scored another goal on a great move past the goalie. Unfortunately, that was not enough as Agawam was able to put in an empty netter in the final 30 seconds.

Playing well for the Wildcats were Joey O'Connell, Ryan Thibideau and John Conley.

Sandy Dodge wins NCAA contest

By James Pote

Congratulations to Sandy Dodge an employee of the Wilmington Post Office, who was the winner of the $20.00 gift certificate to Michael's place. He had three of the final four teams in the NCAA basketball tournament correct.

It was a nail bitter, especially with all of the upsets. There were three other participants who had two of the final four teams correct.

I would personally like to thank all of the participants. It was a success and I know I will run more of these types of questions in the future. Hopefully, I can get even more of a response.

Shawsheen Tech honors two as students of the month

Brian Carroll and Bridget Zanni of Tewksbury, seniors at Shawsheen Tech are "Teenagers of the Month" for March, through a program sponsored by the Billerica Lodge of Elks.

Brian, who specializes in graphic arts, is an honor roll student and recipient of citizenship awards, given to students deemed "pleasant to teach." He recently was honored at a dinner in Boston as the recipient of a Certificate of Merit from the Boston Litho Club, "for possessing outstanding abilities, craftsmanship and leadership in graphic arts."

Carroll cites teachers

He followed siblings and an uncle who attended Shawsheen Tech and believes "a technical education is better than going to a traditional school." He notes that it gave him a good foundation in his chosen field, graphic arts, which he chose not only for the program, but because teachers, "especially Mr. (Robert) Pike made it a happy place to be. I felt comfortable here." Brian said "teachers make this school happen; they make it worthwhile." English has become a favorite subject - "my ninth grade English class turned me around academically,: he said, noting that he began and continue to write short stories that he prints in graphic arts, but hopes to publish professionally some day.

Involved in his community as well, Brian has been an active member of the Boy scouts of American since he was seven; he has achieved Eagle Scout and Order of the Arrow and is now assistant scoutmaster of Troop 26, Lowell. "With this troop, I'm helping to rebuild it, and find I become more involved in the kids' lives.

There's a lot of one-on-one."

His Eagle scout project was the refurbishing of the gymnasium at the Franciscan Center in Andover, where he assembled and directed a team in this 273-hour effort. He has worked at the Camp Wah-Tut-Ca Scout reservation for four summers and the Camp Paul Saturday program in Chelmsford, and received awards for two scout camporees he organized.

Following graduation, he plans to attend college and continue to specialize in graphic arts.

Zanni to compete in state final

Bridget Zanni is a culinary arts student who is looking forward to the first week in April when she will compete at the Mass. Skill Olympics of Vocational Industrial Clubs of American (VICA), having taken a gold medal in the March district competition. She also competed at the state finals as a junior.

As an eighth grader, Bridget enrolled in an after school program at Shawsheen. "Mr. (Al) Mazman opened the door to culinary arts for me," said Bridget, who still keeps in touch with the now retired instructor. Although she was certain cooking was in her future, she enjoyed the ninth grade career exploratory where she "found out about a lot of new ideas," and said both health technology and graphic arts were especially interesting.

Talking and doing food demonstrations at a recent open house, she urged students to "look at the school and keep an open mind. This school is for the students - it's a great place to learn."

Bridget enjoys developing her own recipes, and prefers Italian and Mexican foods, as well as garnishes, plate design and finishing products. On a cruise, she saw her future goal to be a chef in an atmosphere where her love of design and garnishes could be put to good use. Already accepted at Johnson & Wales College, she intends to continue her education there. Her eventual goal, after she completes her education and gains additional experience, is to run her own restaurant.

"Bridget shows great enthusiasm and is a very hard worker, as well as an A student," said her present instructor, Charles Fleming. "She has admirable goals that include using knowledge gained from people on cruise lines, people from all over the world."

At Shawsheen, Bridget is an honor student, a recipient of citizenship awards, a three year member of VICA, and a three year member of the swim team. She has worked as a dietary aide at Woodbriar Nursing Home in Wilmington. Outside of school, she enjoys swimming, skiing, and of course, cooking and baking.

Brian is the son of James and Judy Carroll of Tewksbury; Bridget is the daughter of Judith Zanni of Tewksbury.

Dan Trainor, Shawsheen Guidance Counselor who coordinates the awards program, said nominations are made by teachers on the basis of scholastic achievement, vocational ability, character, leadership and community activities. The Elks Lodge selects the senior of the year, who receives a scholarship from the fraternal organization. Mike Oulette, youth director at the Lodge, operates the program.

Spring

HOME IMPROVEMENT

What's "New" in Gardening?

As My Garden Sleeps
by Mari Gold

Wilmington, March 27, 1957:

As I'm writing this, we are having one of our early spring snowstorms. Ever since childhood, I have heard spring storms called "poor man's fertilizer." It has been said that during a spring snow storm is a fine time to sow grass seed, if you can remember where you need to sow it. The seed needs only to be sprinkled on the snow and as the snow melts, the seed remains moist.

It eventually reaches the earth via the melting snow and during the warm part of the day, it will begin to grow. Many years ago, when spring arrived, everyone was far too busy to think of building a lawn. The "sprinkle on the snow" method was born out of necessity, but time have changed since then.

Practically everyone today admires a fine, green lawn. Here are a few lawn don'ts to remember: Never delay in filling depressions left by frost which has been having a fine time heaving stones under the grass and settling them back when the ground thaws. Spring rains will set newly added soil. Don't be in a hurry to roll your lawn with a heavy roller. Heavy rolling when the ground is wet compacts the earth so that clay soil puddles into a sticky, putty like mass. This makes the soil and lawn crack and break in drier weather. It is much better to reserve rolling for dry spells, after the frost is definitely out of the ground.

Don't wait until May to sow grass seed. Seed must be kept wet for at least two weeks to germinate. Altogether it takes 30 days of moisture to grow good grass. It must be kept wet, even after it starts to grow.

In the spring, until May 15, the grass should be cut short to develop a strong root system and to encourage it to spread into a thick turf. From May 15 to the middle of September it should be cut three inches high. This helps keep the grass from burning in hot weather. This is a simple matter. Simply raise the cutter bar on your lawn mower then you can keep it in the correct position.

Your lawn has several enemies, including weeds, moss chiggers, ants and moles. To cover all of these in one column, would take much more than my share of the paper. I will attempt to cover them in future issues, as the "lawn pests" begin to arrive.

The lawn mower should always be kept in good condition. Cutting grass with a dull mower will simply band it, pull it out by the roots, and leave ridges.

If you feel you don't have sufficient room for a flower garden, improve the exterior of your house with window boxes. Any do-it-yourselfer can make these boxes with ease. Holes must be drilled in the bottom to allow for drainage. The easiest way I know to hang them is with the use of an old fashioned metal shelf bracket. Attach the brackets to the house, then place the window box on them. The weight of the filled box will act as an anchor. If a heavy windstorm should be predicted lift the box off and set it in the garage. With this method of attaching them, you can save the boxes and flowers from damage.

A wide variety of plants will grow in a box. The old standbys, geraniums, coleus, ivies and petunias. Several of the newer varieties will also thrive under box conditions. Select plants to suite each side of the house. Consider the amount sun that will reach them. Don't forget to water them, as they are against the warm building and will dry out quickly. A little plant food, or plant tablets may be given once a month.

As spring arrives with its gala array of flowers, many of us tend to take them for granted, there have always been golden daffodils, pansies and lilacs. They simply keep coming each year. How few realize that these lovely blossoms are actually emigrants as are many of us.

The flower from which most of our daffodils has sprung, is a form of yellow trumpet. It grows on the banks of streams on the European continent from Scandinavia to Spain.

The Pansy, as a garden flower goes back to the early era of Queen Elizabeth I. It was cultivated from a little English wild flower. The word Pansy is derived from the French word "pensie" meaning, "that's for thoughts."

The lilac was brought here from Constantinople in the days of Queen Elizabeth I. Its native land was a mystery until a century ago, when wild specimens were found growing in the mountainous thicket of the Bulgarian Hinterland.

The lovely violet is a truly universal flower. It will thrive in most every nook and corner of the world. This delicate little bloom grows in Greenland, Europe, Alaska, the Straits of Magellan, the cool woods of eastern America and in the mountainsides of western China.

Napoleon loved the violet. Josephine made a habit of wearing them on her dress and sometimes in her hair. When he was banished, he said "I shall return with the Violets in the spring." The flower was immediately adopted as a symbol of loyalty.

So it has been down through the changing ages. Our gardens have been enriched by men from every walk of life. Wanderers, parsons, stay-at-homes and pirates have all, knowingly or otherwise, worked together in increasing the variety of our cultivated plants and the beauty of our gardens.

HOME & GARDEN FEATURES

COMPOSTING MADE EASY—The process for making homemade compost is easier than ever. The Flowtron Chipp'r/Shredd'r/Mulch'r helps turn unwanted yard debris into valuable composting material.

Composting

The latest trend in gardening is one of its oldest secrets: composting.

When the Wall Street Journal covers the advances in composting the way they cover big business, you know this age-old practice has become the next "new" thing.

But compost heaps have been around as long as there have been gardeners tilling the soil. Once gardeners discovered that plants grew better around the decaying matter of compost heaps, their word-of-mouth praises were heard all around the gardening community.

Now, composting has come full circle. Advanced compost makers have perfected their craft. Faced with mounting piles of leaves, lawn clippings, tree and shrub prunings and vegetable wastes, gardeners have innovated ways to convert big piles of refuse to little piles of compost.

Make the pile big enough to heat rapidly and retain heat and moisture. Four feet across and three feet high is the recommended minimum size. Keep the pile well-aerated, either by turning or by shovel perforated pipes down into the pile to admit air. Shred all raw material and mix green and dry wastes as you shred. Moisten each layer and scatter a little nitrogen fertilizer or manure as a catalyst.

Shredding

Shredding is easy with a Chipp'r/Shredd'r/Mulch'r from Flowtron Power Products. For small yards the electric powered model C.S. 2000 will chip branches up to 1¼ inches in diameter. For larger yards, the burly two-cycle gasoline powered model C.S. 2050 is more practical. It can gobble branches up to 1⅞ inches in diameter.

Both models come with collecting bags and can be operated either upright or lying on their sides for convenience in loading.

Save prunings from trees, shrubs and roses until you mow your lawn. Chip a few branches, then shred a pile or two of lawn clippings. That way, when you empty the collecting bag, you will get a well-aerated mixture of coarsely shredded wood chips and finely shredded lawn clippings.

Cooking

Make your compost heap on high ground that drains well, and out in the sun where it can heat faster. Each time you empty a bag of mixed chips, sprinkle it with water thoroughly and scatter two or three cups of sterilized cattle manure or nitrogen fertilizer over the layer. Cover the pile with a sheet of clear plastic held down loosely with bricks, but raised in a few places to admit air. Remove the plastic when the pile has started to heat and turn it to mix the raw matter on the outside with the "cooking" compost in the center.

Dry leaves are a valuable source of organic matter but blow around and are slow to decay unless they are shredded. Pick a dry day when the leaves can be handled easily and stuff them into your Chipp'r Shredd'r Mulch'r. Add a tablespoon of dishpan detergent to a large sprinkling can of water and wet down each layer of shreds. The detergent will make the water soak the dry tissue clear through.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Your Floor Is More Than Just A Place For Walking

White is a practical luxury, even for floors, when the tiles are easy-care glazed porcelain pavers by Summitville. Here, tiles are set diagonally and wood strips added for extra fashion flair.

By Lis King

Don't think of the floor as just a surface to walk on or hold your furniture. Instead think of it as the "fifth wall" and treat it with the respect this designation warrants.

Choosing ceramic tile for this important surface is the wisest move you can make, because it will reward you with endless design possibilities as well as easy care. It will also last longer than any other flooring material, an important consideration in this day and age where Americans are finally leaving trendy decorating behind and investing in quality items that will last a lifetime. And last, but certainly not least, a ceramic tile floor can even save important heating dollars. Installed on a concrete slab of a room with good Southern exposure, a ceramic tile floor will absorb the heat of the sun and release it gradually during the cooler evening hours.

However, Peter Johnson, Jr., vice chairman of Summitville Tiles, feels that it's unquestionably tile's good looks and its great versatility that means most to the average homeowner.

"A ceramic tile floor is at home anywhere," he explains. "There's a type, color and shape for every decorating style under the sun. Unfortunately, a lot of people think there's only the rough terracotta type tile or the institutional-looking ceramic mosaics tile that one sees in many public bathrooms. If they became acquainted with the broad range of tiles and learned how to design with them, they would have tile floors throughout their homes."

What Goes Where

For countryfied rooms, Summitville suggests rugged quarry tiles, fired as they come from the earth, in browns or natural clay reds. However, for warm climates, quarry tiles tinted in such cool hues as greens and blues are a good idea. When octagonal shapes are used, the small square tile that connects them is often a different color, and the effect is great design interest underfoot.

A white floor is a practical luxury when the material is ceramic tile, and its design appeal is universal. But remember that whites aren't all alike, warns Summitville. There is the soft white of a tinted quarry tile, the frost white of one of the firm's new impervious porcelain pavers, and practically every white in between. The softer whites are beautiful in any classic, formal interior, while the stark whites beckon truly contemporary rooms.

Black tiles can be extremely formal, both when used alone, or combined with white tiles in a border design or a checkerboard pattern. Like the tuxedo, whose color scheme it duplicates, black and white will be right at home with grand pianos, topiaries, and valuable Chinoiserie furnishings.

For traditional rooms with true antiques or good reproduction furniture, Summitville suggests porcelain pavers in rich, deep colors, such as burgundy and evergreen.

For the Southwestern look that is sweeping the country, you can't do any better than the Summitshades group of porcelain pavers in mellow desert colors, each one featuring delicate dark and light shadings.

Choose Conservatively

And, of course, there is a wealth of nature colors, both in quarry tiles and porcelain pavers. They range from sand and taupe to caramel and clay red, and they can practically go anywhere.

"Remember, the floor is one of the largest surfaces in the room," notes Johnson. "So it's best to choose conservatively. You are likely to tire of an outlandish color in just a few years, and with a material like tile that will probably last the life of the house, that's not such a good idea. Fortunately, good tile manufacturers understand this, so their palettes are virtually foolproof. If you want a change, remember that you can always add area rugs to your tile floor. Orientals, Ryas, Flokatis and American Indian weaves look especially good atop ceramic tile floors. In summer, you might want to treat yourself to a seasonal change with a straw rug."

Finally, Summitville urges you to keep in mind that there are many ways to set tile. Rectangular tile, for example, can be installed brick-style, in blocks of twos, or herringbone-fashion. Each creates a style of its own. Brick patterns are best for casual rooms. Herringbone designs are distinctive, so pair them with simple, uncluttered furnishings. The block pattern is very versatile. It can even go elegant.

Square tiles take on great style when they are set on the diagonal, and for even more dash, think of pairing them with wood strips in a complementary or contrasting color. This is a more formal look than a plain tile floor and is worth considering if you like rich kitchen cabinetry and other traditional furnishings.

To see a full range of today's best tile looks, send $3 to Summitville Tiles, P.O. Box 73, Summitville, OH 43962. You will receive a 40-page, full-color catalog.

Training the family feline

How can you keep your cat from scratching your furniture? Many people choose to have their cats declawed, but this is not always necessary. You can teach your cat to keep its claws out of the furniture, as long as you are firm and consistent.

If your cat stays inside at all times, buy or make a scratching post and rub it with catnip to make it appealing to the cat. Make sure your cat knows where its post is.

Say "no" loudly

When you see the cat scratching the furniture, reprimand it with a loud "NO." Pick up the cat, take it to its scratching post, and show it how to scratch the post. If you allow the cat to go outside, take it out and show it how to scratch a tree.

Positive reinforcement

Praise and pet the cat when you see it using the post on its own. After a week or two, if the cat is still scratching the furniture, again say "NO" loudly, but this time swat the cat lightly with a rolled-up newspaper. The object is not to hurt the cat but to scare it.

With a little patience and time, the cat will learn. The key is to reprimand the cat every time it misbehaves and to show it the proper behavior. Be gentle but firm, and soon you will have a well-behaved cat.

AVOID DETERIORATION which makes other roofing materials wear out in a few short years, with Rustic Shingle aluminum roofing.

The roofing on your home: A problem or protection?

Has your roof become a problem hanging over your head instead of a protector above your home and family?

Take a careful look at your home's roof. Chances are that you'll see signs of shingles curling, splitting, staining and even rotting. These are signs of the deterioration which composition, fiber glass, wood and tile shingles undergo from the moment that they're installed.

Needless to say, this deterioration is unattractive and decreases your home's value and beauty. Worse yet, these are telltale signs of serious wear which can lead to roof leaks and home damage.

Homeowners across the country are turning to metal roofing as an alternative which avoids this rapid deterioration. An ideal choice is Rustic Shingle, an aluminum roofing system designed to provide the rich texture of hand-split wood shakes.

Rustic Shingle carries a 40-year limited warranty and is available in nine colors. The product features Glidden's three-step baked-on Ultralast finish for strong weatherability without deterioration.

Because this product is manufactured of aluminum, it reflects radiant heat, keeping homes naturally cooler in summer and warmer in winter.

Homeowners have reported total summer energy cost savings of 20 percent and more after Rustic Shingle installation. In addition, the aluminum panels protect against fire, creating a safety advantage particularly important for the southern and western states.

When installed by a qualified professional, Rustic Shingle will protect and beautify your home investment without the deterioration which plagues other materials. For more information, write Classic Products, Inc., Dept. Al, P.O. Box 701, Piqua, OH 45356. SH893774

Lighten dreary wood paneling

A problem of many homeowners is a room that is extremely dreary looking because of dark wood paneling. The National Paint and Coatings Association suggests pickling and whitewashing paneling as solutions to this decorating dilemma.

The NPCA consulted Ina Marx, expert in the field of painted and stained finishes, and owner of The Finishing School in Great Neck, New York, for advice on pickling and whitewashing paneling.

The term "pickling" means to bleach wood of its natural color and stain with white paint by rubbing paint on and off its surface using a cheesecloth.

The key to achieving the stained look of pickling is to work with an unfinished wood surface. You want the paint to penetrate the surface so, in the case of pickling, do not use a primer before you paint, emphasizes Marx.

A two-step bleach is available at most paint and hardware stores and a clear, non-yellowing alkyd or latex paint is recommended for the topcoat.

Another option to lightening paneling is to whitewash it by painting the surface with a thin coat of white paint. In this case, proper surface preparation, including a primer, is required.

You also can drybrush the paneling by "offloading" the paint on your brush, suggests Marx. The paint brush should be dry, with a small amount of paint on its tips. The results of drybrushing look like broken streaks of paint color—not as solid as a regular coat of paint.

The difference between whitewashing and pickling is that whitewashing is much more opaque. Whitewashing coats the surface, while pickling stains the surface—allowing the natural wood surface to show through.

So, when face to face with a dreary room with dark paneled walls, remember there is the option to pickle or whitewash them a lighter color!

Quick and easy stain removal

Mud, red wine and blood are three of the most common stains found on carpets. But you can remove them and prevent permanent damage if you know how.

Mud, no matter how bad it looks, is actually easy to remove. Just wait for it to dry completely, then loosen with a soft brush and vacuum away.

For red wine stains, first dilute the stain with white wine, while the stain is still wet if possible, then clean with cold water and cover the spot with salt. After a few minutes, vacuum up the salt.

Blood stains should be cleaned with cold water and carpet shampoo. Or you can use a paste of cold water and laundry starch. Let the paste dry, then loosen and vacuum.

Vinyl Lattice—A New Idea For A 3000 Year Old Product

You may not know it, but the idea of lattice originated over 3000 years ago. There are references to lattice in the Old Testament of the Bible (Song of Solomon 2:9 and 2 Kings 1:2). The long lived popularity of lattice is due to the way it so easily accents and enhances the beauty of a structure, and its unique ability to define space and afford a measure of privacy while allowing light and air in.

For years lattice was made only from wood, but now there's a choice —vinyl lattice. "Many contractors, remodelers and home owners use Cross VINYLattice" since it never needs painting and won't rot, crack or split," says Ron Drenning, a Birmingham, Alabama contractor. "VINYLattice is durable and virtually maintenance free."

In appearance Cross VINYLattice is very fine and smooth, with no splits, checks, or splinters to mar the satin like finish.

"VINYLattice is more expensive than traditional lattice, but lower installation and maintenance costs can make it a good deal," Drenning says.

Lattice can help you improve the look of your home and grounds in many ways. It provides an excellent way to conceal beneath porches and decks, or to screen garbage cans and utility areas. It adds to the attractiveness of decks, porches and of course can be used in fence, gazebo, arbor and trellis designs to make beautiful landscape features.

Ever thought of using lattice inside? You can brighten up a dull room by hanging lattice from a ceiling, applying it to a wall, using it as wainscoting or a room divider.

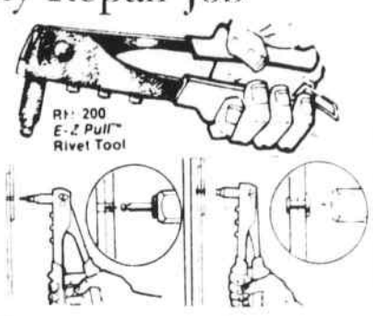

Cross VINYLattice can be used easily in any project that calls for lattice. You never have to paint it, and it will look great for many years.

These are just a few of the many ways Cross VINYLattice can be used: Arbors, Utility Enclosures, Gazebos, Screen Walls, Porch Railings, Landscape Features, Stair Railings, Cabinet Doors, Room Dividers, Sun Screens, Drop Ceilings, Signs, Exhibits, Wainscoting, Planter Bases, Wall Coverings, Fences, Screening Under Porches, Arches and Trellises.

To obtain a brochure or name of a dealer in your area, write Cross VINYLattice, 3174 Marjan Drive, Atlanta, Georgia 30340, or phone 404-451-4531.

Decorate with mirrors

One of the most dramatic ways to enhance a home's decor is through the use of mirrors.

Mirrors are particularly helpful in small homes, condominiums or apartments, where they seem to expand the size of areas.

Throughout the home, there are many strategic places for touches of mirrored surfaces. In the entry hall, for instance, a handsomely framed mirror can help set off that table or rack in an inviting manner.

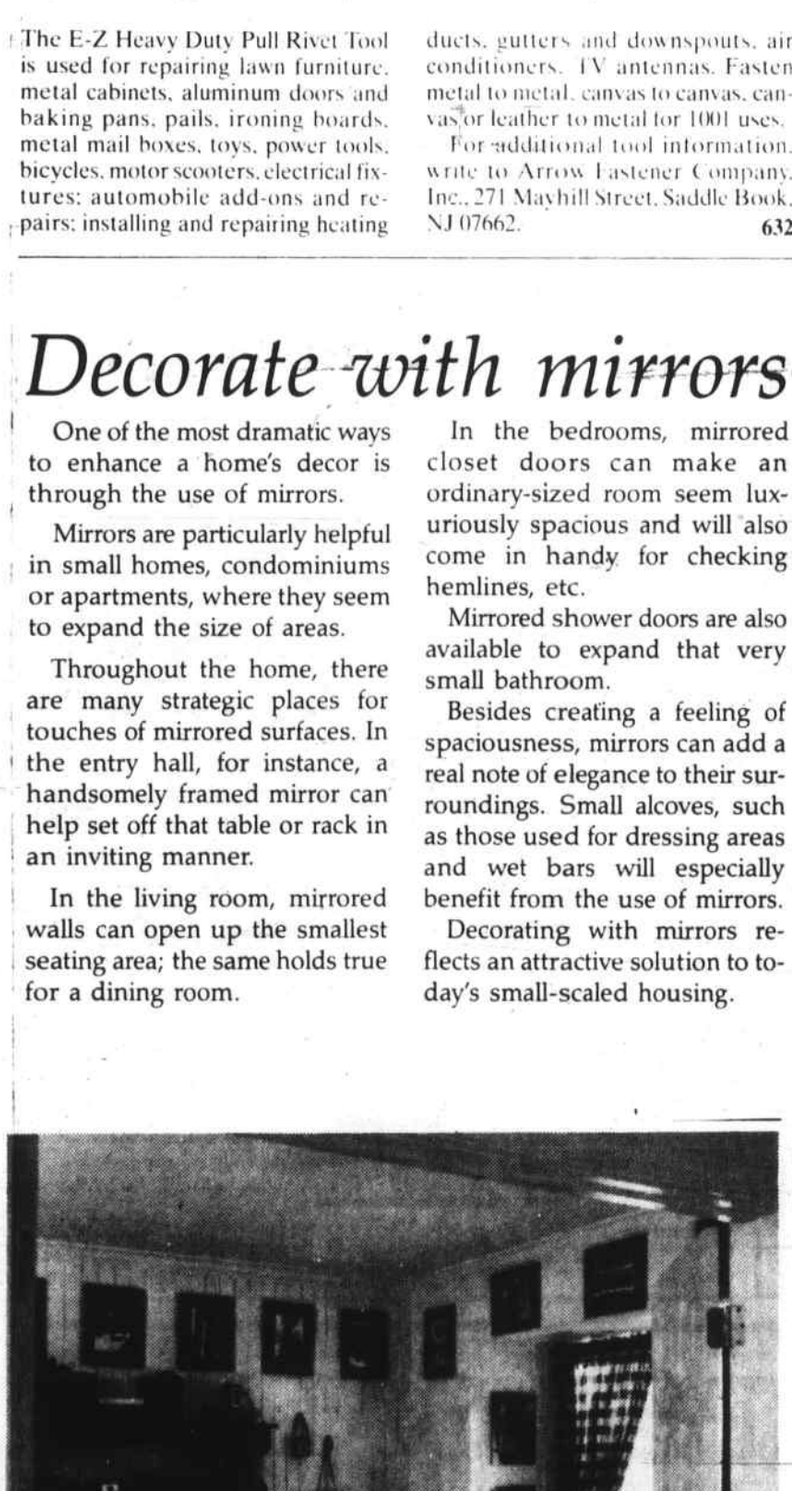

In the living room, mirrored walls can open up the smallest seating area; the same holds true for a dining room.

In the bedrooms, mirrored closet doors can make an ordinary-sized room seem luxuriously spacious and will also come in handy for checking hemlines, etc.

Mirrored shower doors are also available to expand that very small bathroom.

Besides creating a feeling of spaciousness, mirrors can add a real note of elegance to their surroundings. Small alcoves, such as those used for dressing areas and wet bars will especially benefit from the use of mirrors.

Decorating with mirrors reflects an attractive solution to today's small-scaled housing.

TO BRIGHTEN AND VISUALLY EXTEND SPACE, the National Paint and Coatings Association suggests you whitewash and pickle dark paneled walls. Builder: The Hoffman Group. Interior Designer: Jane Gault. Photographer: Jess Smith.

Decorating formulas for enlivening your home

Whether you're moving into a new house or apartment, or you're simply tired of the same old decor, it may seem desirable to go out and immediately create the interior decor you've admired in countless magazines. However, the best approach is to be slow, methodical and use a formula.

"A deliberate approach doesn't necessarily mean an empty apartment with cold, bare walls," says Catherine Crane, interior design expert and consultant to Deck The Walls, the nation's largest network of custom framing and art stores.

"While decorating one's home can be a fun, creative endeavor, a systematic formula based on creative combinations of smaller pieces and accessories will offer affordable warmth as you save for the larger purchases."

When decorating a first home, invariably you must work around pieces "inherited" from former roommates, family members or well-meaning friends. With the basic pieces in place—a bed, chair, couch and end table—effective decorating should be based on a focal point in each room.

When selecting accessories, consider working with a neutral color scheme accentuated with bright dashes of color. Chintz pillows work nicely against a neutral couch. Repeat the pillows' colors in a silk flower arrangement placed next to the couch. Inexpensive throw rugs can be purchased and placed under your coffee table to create a unified look.

Whether you have one significant piece or several small arrangements, your art can easily become the focal point of any room. Take the time to select a print, watercolor, charcoal sketch or pastel which suits your long-term taste, rather than your immediate interior design scheme.

Once you've selected an image, frame it before you display it. When working with a custom framer, describe the ultimate effect you wish to create in the room.

According to Jim Nye, framing specialist for Deck The Walls, the frame and mat treatments should complement the art which, when carefully placed, will enhance the room.

"Too often, people attempt to make the art work for the room, rather than remaining true to the unique qualities of the piece itself. Remember, it was the art you were first drawn to," Nye says.

"Therefore, the art should be enhanced with a darker mat closest to the piece, enveloped by a neutral mat which will expand the art into the frame. The frame should also complement the piece; rich wood frames usually won't work with a dramatic abstract, for example."

Wall decor can also pinch hit for furniture pieces not yet purchased. For example, a group of three framed botanical prints, when hung approximately one foot above a bed, can substitute for an elegant headboard. Spot lighting, strategically placed, creates an overall warmth that will more than compensate for the furniture you may lack.

Updating an outgrown design scheme can be more difficult than starting from scratch. You must decide what to change and what to keep.

Once again, remember the basic formula for redecorating your home. Carefully examine each piece. Can it be reupholstered? Disguised? Used in a different way, in a different room?

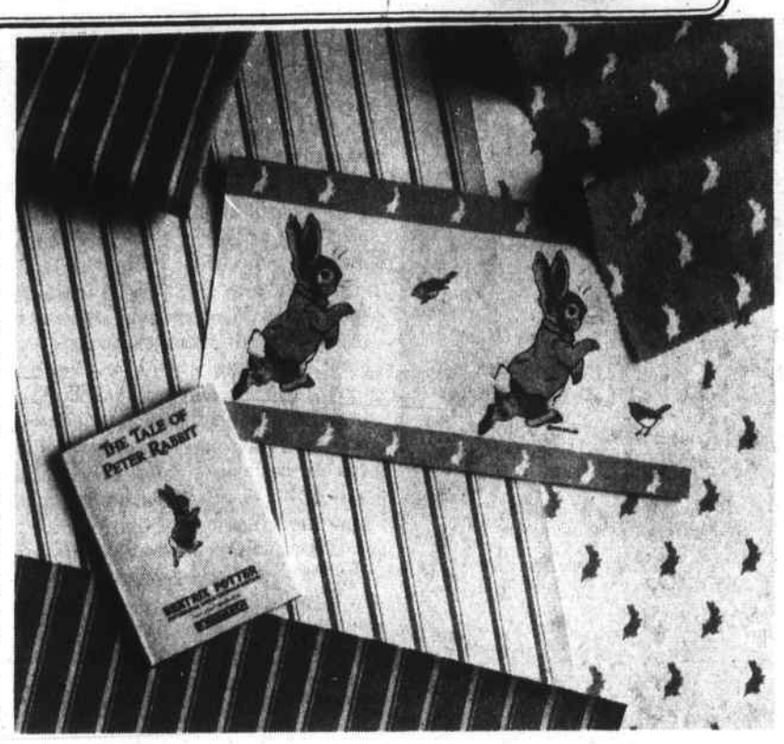

Before investing time and money in new furniture, consider using accessories to explore a new design scheme.

For instance, your home decor has always been traditional and you now feel a yen for Oriental elegance. Realizing that deep lacquered reds, rich golds and glossy blacks typify an Oriental look, seek out brocade fabric or used Oriental rugs and re-cover your old throw pillows. Purchase matchstick blinds at an import store, place colored reeds in a ginger jar, perhaps lacquer your outdated coffee table. The key to effectively using accessories is changing the texture and the color, from floor to ceiling.

To continue the Oriental theme, watercolors can be framed in bamboo and hung over the ginger jar arrangement. Even an antique kimono can be framed and displayed over a couch. Dramatic wall pieces such as these will minimize a postmodern couch and loveseat combination, while providing the exotic effect you desire.

Beyond drawing attention from the furniture, your wall decor can also fool the eye as to the structure of the room. Inexpensive mirrors, when framed in a floral, marbleized or rich wood frame, can be clustered in an arrangement to add light to any room. An array of smaller framed mirrors, arranged over your candle-covered tabletop, adds a romantic glow to the room. Or, consider framing one oversized mirror, and placing it adjacent to a window or above the fireplace.

Whether setting up a new apartment or redecorating a twenty room estate, let creative combinations of smaller pieces—floral arrangements, rugs, pillows and wall decor—work together to create one dramatic, well-coordinated home. HI899434

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT PAINTING?

Q. If the latex paint looks too thick, should I add water?

A. Probably not. Water will only dilute the carefully formulated and blended ingredients of the paint, thereby reducing the paint's quality and its application characteristics. If you think the paint is too thick, stir it more vigorously. However, if the container has been opened and closed a number of times or stored for a while, then you may want to add a small amount of water to replace any that may have evaporated.

Q. Do all gloss paints lose their shine at the same rate?

A. No. Any exterior gloss paint will maintain its gloss much better in a shaded area, compared to a location that is in direct sunlight. In general, however, quality acrylic latex gloss paints will maintain gloss longer than oil-based paints, especially in sunny areas.

Q. What steps should I take when re-using paints that have been stored for awhile?

A. First of all, remove any skin that has developed on top of the paint, along with any rust or other foreign matter. Then, mix the paint thoroughly to a smooth consistency and strain through cheesecloth or nylon hose before painting. 3573125

How to achieve lawn care without tears

Make no mistake about it—a healthy, vigorous, weed-free, insect-free lawn doesn't get that way by itself. It requires proper application of weed-killers, insecticides and fungicides (if fungus is a problem in your area).

Herbicides (weed-killers) generally are most effective if used when broad-leaved lawn weeds are growing actively (usually mid to late spring). They work by making the weeds "grow themselves to death."

Fungicides should be applied at the first signs of a problem. Fungus is not easy to control—especially if the disease gets out of hand.

In all cases, always follow the manufacturer's directions; he has gone to a lot of trouble to determine—for you—the most effective way to use his products.

And don't make the mistake of thinking that, "if a little is good, a lot must be better." Plenty of lawns—shrubs, flowers and vegetables, too—have been badly damaged because of that reasoning!

Find out where your County Agricultural Extension Service is located. Trained staff is there to advise and help you with your problems. Garden centers, too, have qualified people eager to help you.

And of course, grass, being a living, growing plant, needs fertilizing like anything else you grow. Inadequate feeding is the cause of more lawn problems than any other factor.

When grass is fed properly for vigorous growth, it makes such a thick mat that it leaves no room for weeds to get started. Healthy grass resists disease and insect damage.

A rule of thumb is to feed your lawn four times during the growing season. In southern areas, longer growing seasons require additional feedings. A most effective way to feed your lawn is to use a complete, soluble lawn food such as Miracle-Gro.

This gives you a "double-barreled" feeding. The solution which remains on the grass blades is absorbed quickly and goes to work in seconds. The balance penetrates the soil to the roots, which absorb it.

A GREEN LAWN ALL SUMMER LONG—no tears, no work, no sweat... new lawn feeder lets you fertilize your lawn in minutes. Your garden hose does all the work. It's as easy as watering the lawn. The Miracle-Gro No-Clog Feeder automatically mixes the right amount of Miracle-Gro Lawn Food with the right amount of water. Presto! You've never had it so green!

Subsequent rain—or sprinkling in the absence of rain—carries some of the nutrient solution down to the deeper roots. (An old-fashioned granular fertilizer must be thoroughly washed off the blades after application or it will burn the leaves!)

The Miracle-Gro No-Clog Feeder makes it as easy to feed your lawn as simply walking across it. You just pour the pre-measured crystals into the feeder, attach it to your garden hose, and spray-feed your lawn in minutes.

In very dry periods, if the lawn develops brown "burnt-out" areas, get out your Miracle-Gro to turn your lawn green again! But, remember, in the absence of appreciable rainfall, you must water your lawn well.

If soil in your area tends to be quite acid or alkaline, an inexpensive pH test (at your garden center or County Extension Service) will tell you how much lime or sulphur to use to correct this. Do this before feeding the lawn. GT894738

Impatiens—flowers for all uses

"PAINT" YOUR YARD WITH COLORFUL IMPATIENS—there's no flower more versatile than impatiens. They'll grow almost anywhere, in shade or sun, in soils rich or poor, even in sand. They come in many fireworks colors, making a spectacular flower show. Feed them with Miracle-Gro weekly, and you'll have magnificent blooms from spring to frost.

"Paint your yard" with the flower which, in recent years, has become America's number one favorite—and with good reason. It's a very versatile plant, which thrives in sun or shade.

Impatiens, with single or double blooms, are available in a number of varieties, with heights ranging from six inches to two feet. You can use them as a ground cover in areas too shady for good grass growth—you can use them as a bed around the base of a specimen tree in your lawn to accent the beauty of the tree. They need almost no care except for regular feeding with a soluble plant food such as Miracle-Gro.

Imagine impatiens as a welcoming, multi-colored border on either side of the walk leading up to your house! In a foundation planting, impatiens create a superb setting for your shrubbery with the added benefit of acting as a "living mulch"—forcing out most weeds.

Imagine, too, a bed along the edge of your property massed with impatiens—all one color, or in a checkerboard pattern, or just a random scattering of reds, whites, pinks, oranges and violets. You're the artist—wield your own paintbrush.

The flower is resistant to insects and diseases and is very undemanding. Nothing could be easier! Just dig a hole, insert a transplant in it and fill in around it with soil. Your impatiens will grow and flower.

But if you want breathtaking displays of this beauty, water each planting hole with a cupful of a complete soluble plant food such as Miracle-Gro mixed one tablespoon to a gallon of water. It contains important trace elements of plant nutrients that all plants must have to grow strong and beautiful.

After that, a liquid feeding every week or two will reward you with a magnificent show of color throughout your property. If you have a large garden area, the Miracle-Gro No-Clog Feeder makes this an easy, pleasant task. Just remember—between feedings, in the absence of at least moderate rainfall, water your garden well.

Suppose you don't have—or can't spare—a lot of garden space? Impatiens lend themselves beautifully to container gardening—perhaps a tall double variety such as Rosette Hybrid in the center of a large tub or half-barrel with Elfins around the edge.

Picture a display like that on either side of the entrance to your home.

Yard & Garden Tips Save Work, Water

Lawn mowing, watering and weeding are the three biggest jobs in home landscape maintenance and between them, they can put a serious dent in your relaxation time. Whether you're landscaping a new homesite or living with an established one, there are steps you can take to drastically reduce maintenance time. These ideas will also save water.

Less Work & Water with Groundcovers:

Large lawns require substantial maintenance and use more water than any other feature in the landscape. Consider converting part or all of your lawn area to low-maintenance, low-water-using groundcovers. These are low-growing plants that spread to form a carpet over the ground. Commonly used groundcovers are ground ivy, myrtle, vinca, pachysandra, and dichondria. Your local garden center should be able to recommend others for your area and needs.

These groundcovers require little maintenance and need far less water than turfgrass. They tend to be somewhat less durable than grass, so use them where there is little or no foot traffic. Confine turfgrass to those outdoor recreation areas where it's really needed.

Choose Plants for Low Maintenance:

Many plants need little care or water to thrive. Herbs, for example, are wonderfully attractive, low-maintenance, low-water-using plants that will enhance home-cooked meals as well as decorate the landscape. Excellent choices are perennials like rosemary and oregano or annuals like basil and parsley. Lavender, though inedible, grows into a beautiful and aromatic hedgelike shrub that can be used to make sweet smelling sachets.

Your local nursery can recommend attractive and useful landscape plants, many native to your area, that will thrive with little care and only natural rainfall. Attractive possibilities include juniper, cotoneaster, euonymous and heavenly bamboo (Nandina domestica).

Mulch for Work & Water Savings:

The best all-round water-and-work-saver you can employ in the garden, mulch, is simply a 2-to-4-inch layer of organic material — bark chips, compost, pine needles, shredded leaves, even stones and gravel — placed over the soil around your plants. Mulch keeps moisture in the soil, plant roots cool in summer and prevents many weeds from coming up. You can buy mulches at the garden center or make your own with a garden shredder.

Stop Weeds, Reduce Watering:

Before you put down bark chips or other organic mulch, lay down a layer of one of the new permanent landscape fabrics, such as Easy Gardener's Weed-Block. This is a relatively new technological development for landscape gardening. The fabric allows water and air to pass through to plant roots but cuts out light so weeds can't grow. It also helps to maintain soil moisture. Covered with an inch or two of bark chips, the fabric will last virtually forever while reducing weeding and watering requirements.

Water Wise Gardening:

Most of the water from a garden hose or standard lawn sprinkler is lost to runoff or evaporation before it ever reaches plant roots. Consider installing a low-volume drip irrigation system on your property. Drip irrigation uses far less water than conventional systems and can be set up to be fully automatic.

It keeps plants healthier because the leaves remain dry, discouraging disease and insect infestation. Driveways and walks stay dry, too. Drip irrigation kits for planted areas, container plants, and lawns are available at hardware stores and garden centers, or you can have them professionally installed. The water savings will rapidly justify the investment.

A landscape fabric like Easy Gardener's Weedblock allows water and air to pass through to roots while discouraging weed growth. It also helps retain moisture.

THE MOIRE PATTERN in the pleated Levolor shade harmonizes with the rich elegance of the other elements in the room.

Dramatic new shades for Old World glamour

In the days ahead, you'll be seeing more of a window treatment that brings to mind the nostalgia of yesterday, yet is totally modern, according to the experts at Levolor.

It is a pleated shade, versatile enough to work with elaborate draperies and stylish enough to be used completely on its own.

These shades come in a variety of fabrics, many of which are lined for privacy and increased energy efficiency. Especially favored is a collection of moire fabric colors.

These Z-Shades, as they are called, represent a stunning new age in textiles. Frankly opulent moires, a flourish of laces, simple sheers and silks are balanced by the uncomplicated look of the shade. Many are lined for privacy and increased energy efficiency. They add a regal lightness to any room and, because they are custom made, can be fabricated to fit any size window.

How To Reduce Lead In Drinking Water

In the environmentally aware 90's, people are no longer taking the quality of their drinking water for granted. Did you know that lead can get into your drinking water through your household plumbing?

Lead is a mineral which is found in the air we breathe, the water we drink, the food we eat, and can be toxic at certain levels.

Lead in drinking water often results from the corrosion of lead pipes and pipe joints made with lead solder. Water that comes in direct contact with these lead sources can carry unacceptable levels through household faucets. Before 1930, it was common practice to use lead pipes for plumbing. Contamination is a problem in many older communities, where lead pipes are beginning to corrode.

Water utilities in the U.S. do an excellent job of treating water, but lead contamination is often outside of their control.

The best way to determine the level of lead in your drinking water is to have the water tested. Contact your local health department, water utility, or a state certified testing laboratory to have your drinking water tested. Or your Culligan man will assist you in obtaining an independent analysis of your water. The Aqua-Cleer® H-83 Series Reverse Osmosis Drinking Water System will help get the lead out.

How to add your own creative touch to windows

How to laminate a blind

First consider your material. How much will you need? Measure the width and length of the blind. Multiply to get the square footage. Then add about 20 percent for overlapping. That's how much you need.

Now figure out which side of the slats you look at most: The top (convex) or the bottom (the concave). The side you see in the room when you tilt the slats closed is the side you're going to laminate.

Hint: Levolor's Riviera blind is available with a 2" slat as well as the 1" wide slat. For laminating, the 2" slat is the easiest to use.

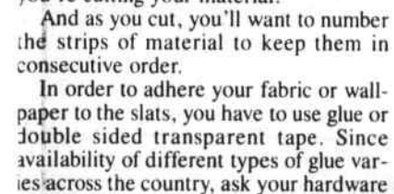

If you've picked a material with a pattern, design or illustration on it, remember that closed slats overlap. Since you don't want an important part of a design to be hidden under the overlap, be sure to make provision for the overlap when you're cutting your material.

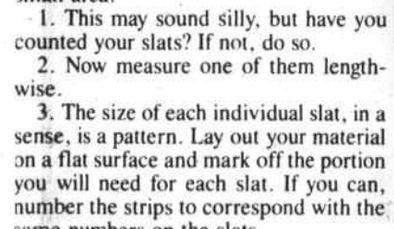

And as you cut, you'll want to number the strips of material to keep them in consecutive order.

In order to adhere your fabric or wallpaper to the slats, you have to use glue or double sided transparent tape. Since availability of different types of glue varies across the country, ask your hardware dealer to suggest one. To make sure of its adhesive quality, you may want to test a small area.

1. This may sound silly, but have you counted your slats? If not, do so.
2. Now measure one of them lengthwise.
3. The size of each individual slat, in a sense, is a pattern. Lay out your material on a flat surface and mark off the portion you will need for each slat. If you can, number the strips to correspond with the same numbers on the slats.
4. Now cut them out.
5. If you're using something other than self-adhesive paper, this is where you apply the glue or tape to the slats. But test first. Different fabrics may require different thicknesses of glue, depending on their porosity. Run it smoothly right down the center. Don't use much. You can tack the edges down later if necessary. Then apply whatever material you're using (keeping an eye on the numbers to be sure they're in sequence).

6. With a sharp pointed razor, or X-Acto knife, cut out cord holes carefully. Follow the outline of the hole already in the metal slat. Cut against a wood board for clean cuts.

Now begin to assemble. Insert the slats in the proper sequence. After inserting about four slats, tilt the blind closed to observe that slats are turned correctly.

Re-thread the cords through the holes. Start at the top with the right cord and alternate it on left side rung, then right side rung, then left, and so on. It is easier to thread the blind if you heat the end of the cord over a flame to fuse the fiber ends.

When you get to the bottom, bring the cord down through the center hole of the bottom rail, then up through the nearest hole. Knot the end. Pull all the slack from under and inside the bottom rail. Put the ladder caps back on.

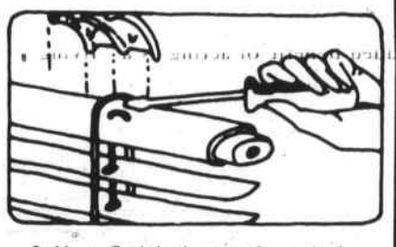

If the cords are unequal, you can move the knot you just tied or re-knot the pull cord loop inside the tassel.

A word of caution: Never reverse the slats end to end. If you do, they won't line up precisely when you rehang them. The simplest way to avoid a problem is to mark each slat with a piece of masking tape which you can write on if slat sequence is important for a patterned design applique.

Take your blind apart

Regardless of the material you use—fabric, wallpaper or vinyl—follow these steps:

1. First you give one of the bottom ladder caps a little tug. Then get the blade of the screwdriver next to the pin on the 'ladder' cap and twist; that will pry the cap off. Do the same with the other 'ladder' caps.

2. Next, find the knot at the end of one lift cord. Untie it, and pull it out of the bottom rail. (Do not confuse the lift cord with the ends of the 'ladder.') Do the same with the other lift cords. Study the path the cord follows as it passes from slat to slat on alternating sides of each rung.

3. Now, reach to the top of the slats, grab the cords, and pull them up through the slats. But be very careful not to pull them out of the head.

4. The slats now will slide right out of the blind from either side.

How to provide a fire escape for your important records and documents

There is no escaping the fact that fire striking one's home is a traumatic experience. Even when no injuries are suffered, many irreplaceable personal belongings and important records are damaged or destroyed—if not by flame, often by smoke or water used to put out the flames.

Dealing with the aftermath of a fire is never easy; but, for many people, recovering is even more difficult because simple precautions were not taken to protect valuable possessions and papers.

How do you prepare for the possibility of fire? Provide a fire escape for important records and documents by following these basic recommendations from Sentry Group, manufacturer of U.L. rated Sentry fire safes, files and storage containers:

1. Keep an up-to-date inventory of your belongings, including when and where each item was purchased, and its cost. This will help support and expedite your insurance claims.

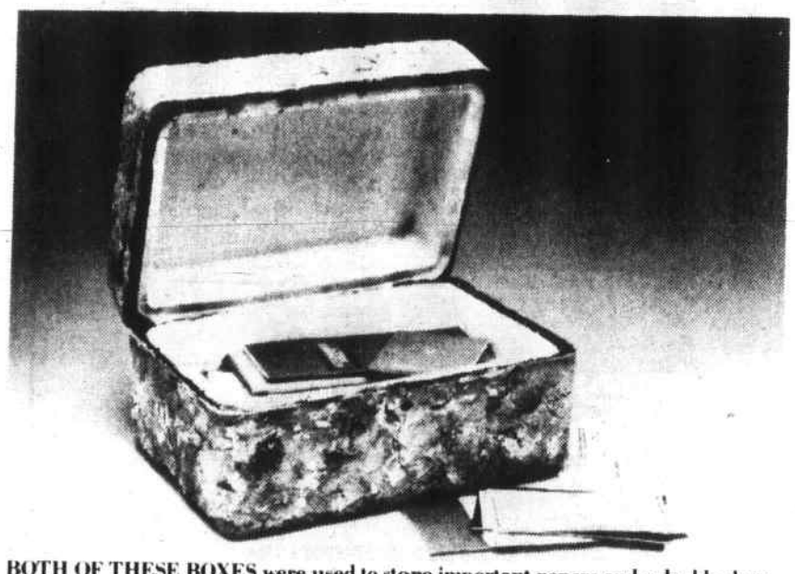

2. Supplement the inventory list with photographs of each room of the house and key items, such as furniture, collectibles and more expensive belongings. The photos will give a clearer description of your possessions, and will help you remember smaller items that aren't on your list.

3. Store the records of your belongings in a fire safe. A fire-resistant safe, file or storage chest that is Underwriter's Laboratories (U.L.) tested for fire protection, like those manufactured by Sentry, is designed to protect your records from the most devastating fire.

4. Use a U.L.-rated fire-resistant container to store other important documents, such as insurance policies, tax records, marriage certificates, automobile title, stock and bond certificates, passports, deeds, contracts, etc.

5. Irreplaceable items, such as family heirlooms and keepsakes, jewelry and photographs, should be protected similarly. Most people are not aware of how easily gold and other precious metals melt; and most insurance policies place strict maximums on payments for jewelry.

BOTH OF THESE BOXES were used to store important papers and valuable documents. Unlike the common metal box (top) which acted as an incinerator during a fire and turned its contents to ashes, the Sentry Fire Safe Security Chest (bottom) is U.L.-tested to protect its contents during a fire.

Simple precautions

"These simple precautions should be as automatic as taking out an insurance policy," says Jim Brush, marketing manager for Sentry Group. "After all, knowing that valuable belongings are protected against fire can be an incredible comfort."

Sentry manufactures a variety of U.L.-rated fire safes, files and storage containers, ranging in price from $35 to $150.

Since no fire-safe container can survive more than one fire, all Sentry Fire Safe models carry an "after-fire replacement guarantee," offering consumers a free replacement unit if theirs has been destroyed by fire.

IT'S HOME IMPROVEMENT TIME

Traditional Kitchen Popular

An ever-popular style for home interiors, traditional kitchens offer the warm, informal look that many families prefer. This kitchen, created by Whirlpool appliance specialists, offers an island counter and informal eating area to handle eat-on-the-run schedules that are a fact of life for most families in the '90s. A full complement of Whirlpool appliances in contrasting almond and black-glass bring out the warm tones of the dark wood cabinets, adding to the informal feeling of the kitchen.

Which of the many country looks appeals most to you?

There's English "country." There's French "country." The fact is, just about every country has its "country."

Scandinavian "country," for example, is notable for its uncluttered elegance. This is the kind of thinking that has inspired a line of window treatments called Shutter Blinds from Levolor.

These have great appeal for the homeowner who appreciates sophisticated simplicity that borders on primitive. The colors, which capture the warmth and charm of antiques, are painted on one and two inch wood slats.

'COUNTRY LOOK'—These wood Shutter Blinds are custom made in painted colors that dress up an entire room.

An expert's paint removal primer: Tips on technique

Your latest trip to the flea market turned up a perfect oak dining room table. But there's one small hitch: The beautiful wood is hidden under an awful coat of avocado green paint.

If your first thought is to by-pass the table, think again. Removing the paint from furniture (or "stripping") can be easier than you think, if you know a few professional secrets.

Homer Formby, America's best-known authority on wood care and refinishing, offers these hints for paint removal projects.

• The moderate temperatures of fall are ideal for paint removal projects. Paint removers work best when the temperature is between 65° and 85°F. Higher or lower temperatures interfere with the action of the chemicals in the remover.

• Be certain you work in a well-ventilated area, with a constant supply of fresh air. Formby recommends working outdoors if possible. Be certain to wear heavy rubber gloves, purchased at the hardware store. (Rubber gloves made for dishwashing aren't meant for this job.)

• Don't use a "painting" stroke to apply a paint remover. You'll fan the gases that do the work into the air, cutting down on the effectiveness of the product. Instead, apply paint remover by dragging a filled paintbrush across the wood about four inches. Stop, refill the brush, and make another four inch stroke. Once you've applied a layer of paint remover, don't touch it until all the bubbling action stops.

• If you're working on a piece that's heavily carved or has hard-to-reach areas, you may want to try an aerosol paint remover. Brush-on paint removers are best for most horizontal surfaces.

Formby adds that choosing the right product helps make the job easier. "Look for a heavy-bodied paint remover," he says.

"The can should be very heavy when you pick it up. Shake the can. It should sound like molasses, not like water in the can. Thick paint removers are easier to control, and you use less product in the end."

Formby himself has developed a paint remover that has been proven superior to other products in independent tests. Formby's paint remover, designed especially for use on wood, takes off old paint without harming the wood or stripping the "patina" (the glow that wood takes on as time passes). It's available in hardware stores, home centers and some mass merchandise outlets.

When it comes time to remove the softened paint, Formby has more advice to make the job "come off" smoothly.

• Use a plastic putty knife, rather than a metal tool, to lift off the loosened paint gently. Have an empty box nearby, and sling the loosened paint into the box.

If some spots of paint don't come up, do not try to scrape or gouge them off. You could damage the wood. Instead, apply another coat of paint remover, and let it do the work for you.

Formby does not recommend using paint removers that are rinsed off with water. Water can cause extensive damage if allowed to sit on wood.

Next year 'School Profiles' a must in Massachusetts

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

They come in your basic earthtones; various grays in lighter shades of pale; harder-to-read red; and pretty, in pink.

They feature school buildings, logos, bells, books, and a koala; talk "philosophy," "mission," "climate," "values," "goals," "performance," facts, and figures.

Mandated by the Education Reform Act, they look to be the answer to a real estate agent's dream: attractive, PR-perfect brochures designed to sell every school in every corner of town to its most important potential customers: The Parents.

They're the ultimate example of school choice.

"This is a problem-solving thing," says Reading Assistant Superintendent of Schools Dennis Richards. "The state mandated that next year everybody has to have a profile, so Bob Munnelly asked if the principals would work on theirs this year because he felt we were in a position to be able to do it."

They did it - and the profiles, a year ahead of schedule, have just been given to the state commissioner of education to be used as examples of what a profile can be.

For the past few months, Richards has been talking with the principals about what might be included in the profiles, developing a schedule, editing, making format suggestions.

And it highlights three distinctions on the national and state levels: Barrows' selection in 1987-88 as a winner in the U.S. Department of Education's School Recognition Program, one of 287 elementary schools to be so honored for its exemplary instructional practices; student recognition during the past five years for award-winning poetry submitted to the Massachusetts Science Poetry Contest; meritorious awards and certificates of high achievement for participation, also during the past five years, by accelerated math students in the Math Olympiads.

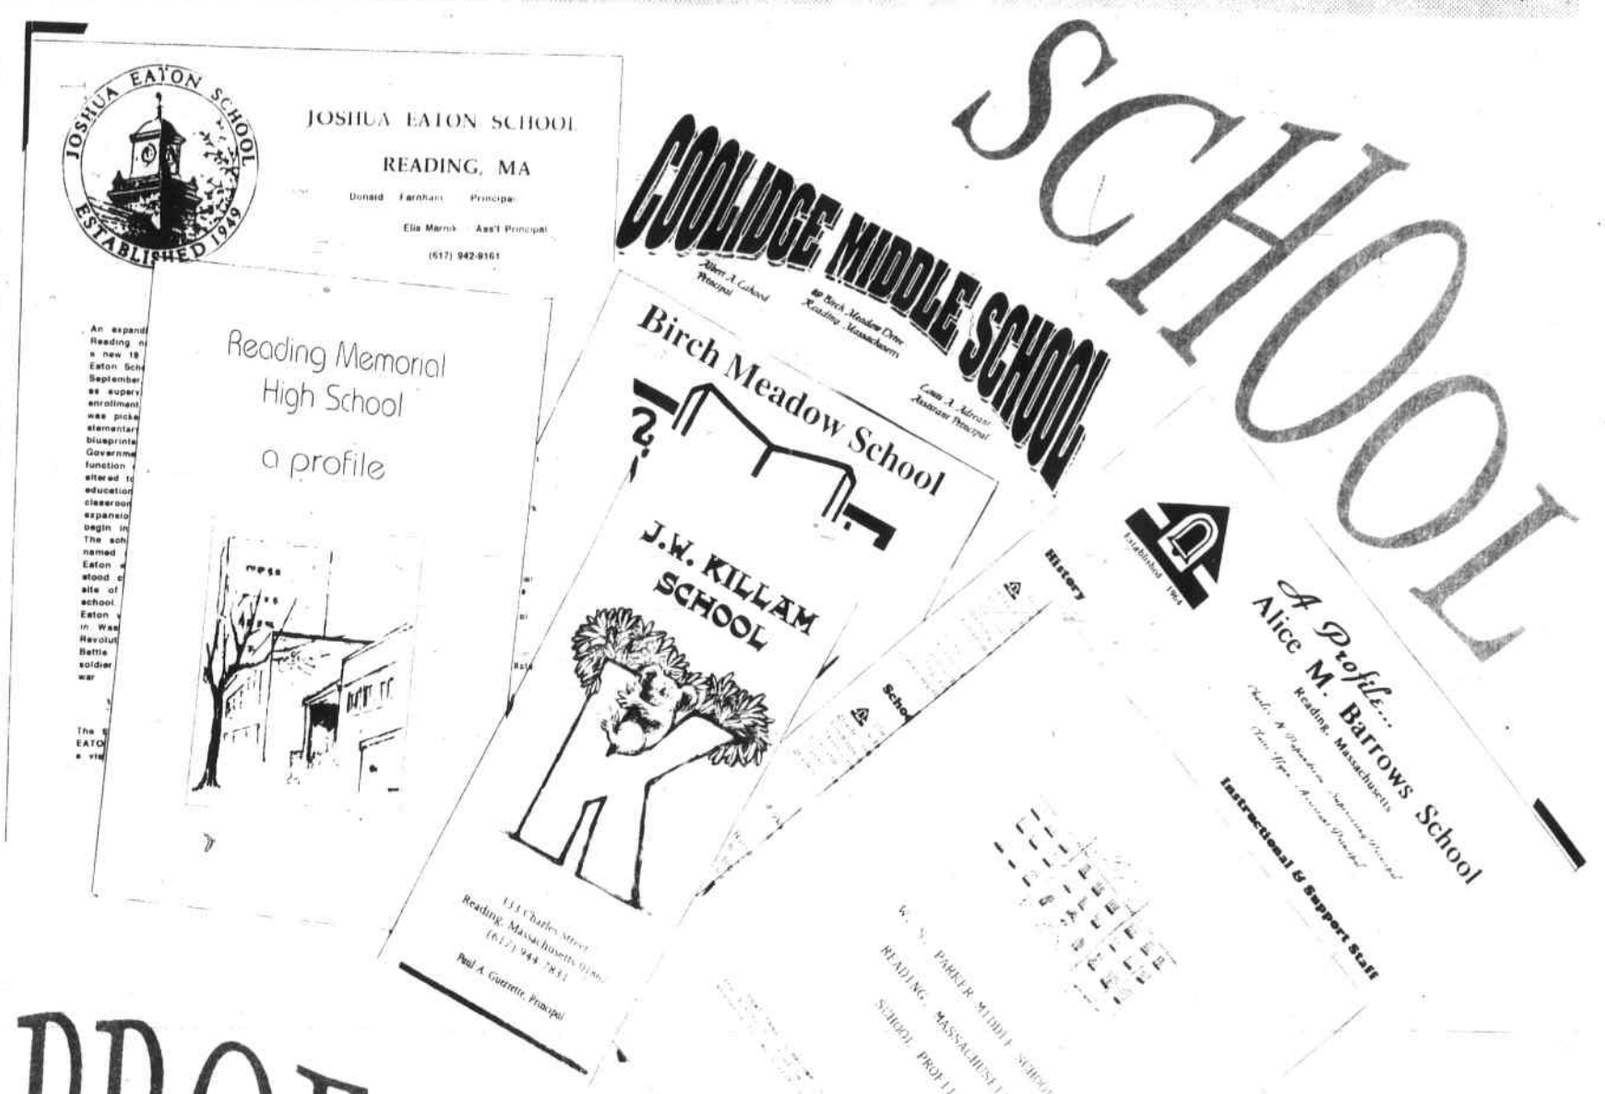

The Birch Meadow School's folded one-piece, 7" x 8.5" three-pages-plus-cover-page "informational profile" contains sections on educational philosophy, guiding vision, class size and expected growth, programs and services, student performance, the parent teacher organization, and distinctive characteristics.

In its fourth year, the Birch Meadow student "publishing house," led by teachers and parents has published almost 2,000 original books. And the school for years has been committed to - and influenced by - a very active student council.

The Joshua Eaton School offers an eight-page profile with sections on history, vision statement, school staff, class size, organization, community characteristics, Understanding Handicaps, parent teacher organization, district information, reporting system, academic performance, instructional practices, global education, reading incentive program, school advisory council, special education, the Joshua Eaton enrichment program, and school renovations.

ANTHONY MANCONI

Folks, do you get the feeling, as I do, that we are living in an impersonal world where contact with "real" people is seldom made?

I remember the fish peddler coming in our neighborhood every Friday morning. Other weekly visits were made by the fruit and vegetable man, the baker who would bring us "Our daily bread," the insurance man would collect a quarter every week. The milkman would be bright and early every morning and in the summer the ice man would be a welcomed sight.

I'm writing this "Chip" because a gadget was installed today on my gas meter that allows the meter to be read from the outside. I'll miss my bi-monthly chat with Tony Marec from Wakefield. Thank God we still have the letter carriers.

I submitted a painting of pine in an art contest. It was mistakenly hung upside down and I won first prize!... Folks, if life knocks you down and you can look UP - you CAN get up... I told my Aunt Nora that the name Gould is Irish with a little Scotch in it. "That may be," she said, "but I've never seen George Gould with just a 'little' scotch in him."

Aunt Nora was feeling real low so she dialed a number and said, "Hello, is this the crazy doctor? How much do you charge? $100 an hour? Goodbye, I'm not that crazy!"

I remember when Richie Hamel of Winchester came home from Fenway Park and told his mother, Ma, the Red Sox were leading the New York Yankees for two hot dogs and a coke, but the Yankees came back and went ahead for two boxes of popcorn. The the Sox hit a homerun with the bases loaded just as I finished a big bag of potato chips, and here I am, Ma, just in time for dinner."

Paul Simon went to a doctor who asked, "Did you see anyone

Realtor President Barrett attends national meeting

Christopher M. Barrett, GRI, President, Eastern Middlesex Association of Realtors was among nearly 5,000 Realtors and guests attending the National Association of Realtors 1994 Midwinter Business Meetings, Feb. 2-7.

Emerging technology in the real estate business; the outlook for the economy and real estate; restructuring of Realtor multiple listing systems, Realtor political involvement; environmental issues; housing affordability and housing needs problems; professional standards; development of a secondary commercial loan market; and health care reform were among the topics covered at the meetings.

"As Realtors, we face major challenges today in the way property listing information is shared and accessed," Barrett said. "The recent business meetings in San Diego gave us a chance to examine a variety of issues and to help in molding our industry's future," he added.

Through general sessions, committee meetings, forums and education sessions, Realtors learned about some of the formidable issues facing the association and the real estate industry, and had the opportunity to network with colleagues from all over the nation.

Margaret Carlson, White House correspondent for Time magazine, and Rep. Bob Filner, D-Calif., were among the speakers addressing sessions at the San Diego meetings. Carlson and Filner spoke before NAR's Legislative and Political Forum on the importance of Realtor political involvement and health care reform.

The National Association of Realtors will hold its next conference, the Midyear Meetings and Trade Exposition, in Washington, D.C., April 21-27. The Annual Convention and Trade Exposition will be in Anaheim, Calif. , Nov. 2-7.

The National Association of Realtors, "The Voice of Real Estate," is the nation's largest trade exposition, representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

About The Towns
by Phyllis Nissen

The ice rink controversy

Hold your breath in Stoneham

According to WCVB-TV, the air quality at the Stoneham Arena is among the worst in the region with a carbon monoxide reading of .70. Accordingly, Stoneham Town Administrator Jeffrey Nutting has announced that the town will hire an independent contractor to test the air inside the rink.

Nutting attributed the poor readings to a "couple of broken vents" in the rink's roof ventilation system, according to the "Stoneham Independent." The motorized Zamboni which runs on propane gas is also scheduled for a tune-up.

Channel 5 has already returned to the rink and noted improvement with a .05 carbon monoxide reading. According to Nutting, anything under .30 is "tolerable" and any problems will be corrected.

No wonder some Stonehamites opt to practice their skating on the Cape.

Shuttle takes off

The North Suburban Chamber of Commerce has launched shuttle services from the Mishawum commuter rail station in Woburn to Burlington businesses.

The launch comes after two years of planning and fundraising, with grants from the U.S. Department of Transportation and the Massachusetts Highway Department, and contributions from Finard & Company, Lahey Clinic, American Landmark, Hewlett Packard, and other private sources.

The bus makes three runs from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. and three from 3:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

The shuttle's three targets, according to many editions of the "Daily Times Chronicle," are: Burlington residents who wish to leave their cars in Burlington and can now park free at the rear of St. Margaret's; Route 3 commuters from Nashua and Lowell; and I-93 and Route 128 commuters from Boston.

Planned for January, activated in March because of funding, the bus will run next year if the required $14,000 is raised.

The hope, according to Cynthia Cain Frene, executive director of the Chamber's Transportation Management Association, is to eliminate at least 39,000 vehicle trips from area roadways.

$230,000 isn't bad

The Wilmington Board of Selectmen has reached a three-year contract agreement with Town Manager Michael Caira, who is "satisfied" with the terms, according to the Wilmington edition of the "Town Crier."

Caira begins his second three-year term as town manager on July 1 at $75,000, the same base salary for the first contract year. In each of the next two years, he will earn 2.5 percent raises: $76,875 for 1995 and $78,796 for 1996.

The main difference between this new contract and the one that expires is a decrease in Caira's insurance benefits, the details of which translate into a total benefits package worth $2,307 instead of the current $6,600.

Principal negotiators for the town were Selectmen Robert Cain and Michael McCoy, who says, "It's a good contract for the manager, and I think it's a great contract for the town."

In fashion in Wakefield

The Wakefield YMCA Women's Auxiliary is sponsoring a benefit on Wednesday, April 13th at the First Parish Congregational Church Vestry in Wakefield.

And the ladies are offering more than just desserts. Those are at 7 p.m., followed at 8 p.m. by a Goodwill Heirloom Fashion Show, all to benefit the Y.

Tickets are available - $10 each - from any Y Auxiliary member or at the Y on Main St. For more information, call Mary Daniels at (617)245-3456.

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

Build your own "Bat House"

Massachusetts Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield is offering a "Build Your Own Bat House" workshop for families on Sunday, April 17; choose either 1 to 2:30 p.m. or 3 to 4:30 p.m.

Though not fun to have in a house, bats are great to have around a house. They eat thousands of mosquitoes nightly and are fascinating to watch. After learning a bit about bat ecology and behavior, participants will be provided with all the materials to construct a bat house, and instructions regarding placement and monitoring. All one needs to bring is a hammer. Volunteers will provide assistance as needed. For children age 6 and up, accompanied by a parent.

Pre-registration is required. Limited to 10 families per session. Fee: $12/family ($10/ Massachusetts Audubon members). For more information call the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary at (508) 887-9264.

Daylight savings can be unwelcome

As clocks spring forward on April 3, the extra hour of daylight hailed by some may be dismaying to others. The reason? The switch to Daylight Savings Time requires an adjustment in sleep schedules that can be difficult for people who have trouble sleeping.

"For individuals with sleep problems, even a time change of one hour can be a source of stress," says David Neubauer, MD, associate director of the Johns Hopkins Sleep Disorders Center. "This stress results in the very problem these people want to avoid -- insomnia." Other individuals, commonly referred to as "larks" by sleep experts because of their tendency to retire and rise early, also can have a particularly hard time adjusting to time changes, notes Dr. Neubauer.

Daylight Savings Time isn't the only cause of insomnia, which affects as many as one-third of all American adults. A 1993 Gallup survey of sleep experts found that everyday stress is the most common cause of short-term insomnia. The survey also found that if short-term insomnia remains untreated, it can become chronic -- interfering with quality of life, impairing the ability to perform at work, or leading to fatigue-related accidents.

Interestingly, it may be harder to adapt to the spring time change, when clocks move ahead one hour, than the fall change, when clocks are set back one hour. "This may be due to changes in morning and evening light that occur after the spring time change," says Dr. Neubauer. "The mornings become darker, making it difficult for some people to wake up, and the evenings are lighter, tempting individuals to stay up later and delay bedtime."

When sleeplessness become a problem, a few simple steps, such as taking a relaxing bath before bedtime or cutting back on caffeine-containing products, can help. "It's also important to avoid watching a bedside clock, which can cause stress by reminding you that you're still awake at a late hour," adds Dr. Neubauer. "A physician can recommend more sophisticated behavioral techniques, and when appropriate, prescribe sleep medications."

More tips on improving sleep can be found in a free brochure available by calling 1-800-SHUT-EYE. The tollfree telephone hotline, which is open 24 hours a day, is sponsored by Searle.

School Profiles

From S-1

because every school is so different," says Richards. "The profiles really bear that out. They're attractive. They're reflective of the culture of the school. They really highlight some of the positive things that are going on at each of the schools. There are 100 uses for these."

According to Richards, the brochures represent the collaboration of principals and members of their school communities, supported in various ways by volunteer efforts.

The administration was looking for each school to be "very, very unique" and the results are very, very impressive.

Considering a move to Reading? Which house? Which neighborhood? Which elementary school?

How about the Alice M. Barrows School, its profile "produced by the Barrows News in cooperation with Charles N. Papandreou, Principal and Claire Flynn, Reading Specialist, February 1994" and printed on heavy-duty recycled paper?

The 8" x 10", four-page brochure details the school's history, population, instructional and support staff, parent volunteers, mission statement, parent-teacher organization, and programs and projects of note, such as the intergenerational "It's Good To Care," "Understanding Handicaps," and "Junior Great Books."

It talks academic performance and specific test scores on the national and state levels; describes curriculum; a climate which encourages learning; staff development; significant features; and preventative programs.

Eaton is one of 15 schools in the world to participate as a pilot school in the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development's global education program. To infuse a global perspective throughout instruction, the Eaton staff has developed interdisciplinary approaches to teaching: designing curriculum models, and designing and testing ways to assess student performance on significant global education outcomes.

Killam, last in the elementary alphabet, is Reading's largest elementary school and the only one to have included student comments in its four-times-folded, 8" by 11" pink flier; the Killam koala perched carefully in the Killam "K" on the first page.

The Killam profile contains sections on the goals and commitments of the Reading Public Schools, values, history, the school, student performance, goals for students, a strong parent support group, a dedicated faculty.

And three squares by the kids: "Kid Quotes," "What I Like Best About Killam School is ...," and "Good Things About Killam School." The powerful quotes from students at every level can best be summed up by the second grader who says, "It's a good place to be."

Among its many distinctions, Killam offers KOALA, a thriving afterschool enrichment program involving parents, teachers and the community; VOICE, a parent-community classroom volunteer program; and RISE, a preschool program for both handicapped and non-handicapped youngsters. In 1988, the Massachusetts Department of Education named Killam one of seven Carnegie Schools, authorizing it to address the goal of improving student performance by empowering teachers through shared decision-making.

Reading's middle schools, Parker and Coolidge; and high school have produced distinctive profiles, ranging, respectively, from two-and-a-half 7" x 8.5" pages of text to four 8" x 10" pages to 10 5.5" x 8.5" pages.

Some of Parker's many claims to fame are its selection as a national school of excellence, its principal's presidency of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, and its students who have come in second place in the National Geography Bee and achieved international honors in Future Problem Solving competitions.

Designated a Middle School of Excellence by the Massachusetts Department of Education in 1989, Coolidge can boast, among its many distinctions, a principal and assistant principal of the year; and has, most recently, won national recognition through its innovative Electronic Bookshelf computer reading incentive program, and sent students to events such as the National Geography and Spelling Bees, and the National Science Olympiad.

Reading High's profile contains an entire page of faculty achievements and another of student successes, on national, state and local levels.

School profiles offer the gifted and talented principal and crew the challenge of creatively connecting graphic design with budget reality and a golden opportunity to boost staff self-esteem.

By giving administrators permission to brag, the Education Reform Act has produced, in one Massachusetts community, at least, a sense of best-effort collaboration and a tangible piece of what each school community is all about.

If the results in Reading are typical, then this one aspect of educational reform, which has received little publicity so far, is about to earn high marks.

Ryan Powers asked his mother Louise, "Ma, I've never seen pictures of angels with beards. Do men with beards ever go to Heaven?" Louise smiled and said, "Yes, they do, Ryan, but only by a 'close shave'!... I liked the job I used to have making sausages. It was the only time I could make "both ends meet."... I can hear someone groaning after that gem, it must by my Aunt Nora.

There are many school teachers in my immediate family. One of them, Janet Leuci, my cousin from Saugus, said to me, "Chipper, every classroom should have a closet where a teacher can go in, shut the door and yell 'Ahr-r-r-r!' to relieve the tension."... Does anyone remember what we did before television? In my house we'd talk and on Sunday we'd gather around the piano and with my sister, Mary, playing, we'd sing all afternoon.

Folks, please take the word of a "charter member" of the "Pack Rats" - me. "Don't build anymore shelves." I built a shelf and Kathy filled it so I built another one and another one etc. We bought a new vacuum cleaner and brought the old one down the cellar to keep an older one company.

We have a cellar full of junk and that goes for the garage too: there's old floor lamps, television sets, toasters that pop down instead of up, so Kathy and I have taken the "pledge." Buy something new, throw the old one out. Wonderful except for one thing, Kathy was pushing my old favorite easy chair out the door on rubbish collection day and, for crying out loud, I was sitting in it!

I must confess, we had an All-American Christmas at my house. The tree came from Canada, the lights from Japan, the ornaments came from China. Thank God the idea was from Bethlehem.

Tony Stack got word that his Uncle Kevin fell into a brewer's vat and was drowned. His co-workers had a hold of him twice, but he kept pushing them away... Dukie DeSisto applied for a job in a machine shop. The application asked "What machines can you operate?" Dukie wrote down "gumball, pinball and slot machines."

Well, many of my readers have gone to Florida for the winter. They get the column every week but a little late. I can't mention who they are because too many people specialize in the wrong kind of house cleaning.

As the congregation prepared to recite the 23rd Psalm, Father John Crispo made this announcement, "We will now repeat the 23rd Psalm together. Will George Gould who generally gets to the 'still waters' while the rest of us are in the 'green pastures' wait for the rest of us to catch up and we'll all go on together."

"Criminal" or justice for all?

They call them 'criminal' days

Some Reading parents refer to what seems to them an overabundance of early release days as "criminal" days, days when students think they have the right to take over every fast food place in the center of town, go malling, rent videos or head for the cinema.

And although Reading secondary school students are used to being dismissed early every Wednesday throughout elementary school, some of them seem to look upon early release - known to teachers as "in-service" - days as permission to party, the times to exercise their rights to take vacations without consequences.

It seems as if every new elementary school parent who moves into town asks why about Wednesdays, and the Superintendent of Schools is forever explaining that the school days on each side of Wednesday have been longer for years so that no school time is lost. Teacher contracts, need for conferences and in-service training, Reading's new central voting site - all contribute to the secondary school early release days or systemwide days off which make up the school calendar.

The Winchester Community School Association recently polled parents on such school-calendar items as vacations, length of academic year, and early release days, and discovered the following: a 25 percent minority of the parents considered them beneficial on the basis of convenience alone; 46 percent determined them inconvenient; and 28 percent were neutral.

The most common complaint centered around what to do when two working parents have an elementary school child who is let out early 20 times a year, according to CSA President Betsy Cregger in the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

Only one elementary school in Winchester provides afterschool early release programming for students whereas Reading's elementary school children often have the option of regularly scheduled afterschool programs on Wednesdays, offered at individual schools and-or through Creative Arts. In Reading secondary school students often find themselves at loose ends, so to speak.

Winchester parents and other community members volunteer their services on early release days in the popular Lincoln Afterschool Adventures program which operates with the proceeds of a nominal fee paid by participating families.

Sixty-four percent of Winchester survey participants were in favor of such a program for $5 to $10 per afternoon, depending on the types of activities offered; and 63 percent - and the general feeling - of those responding were in favor of teacher training and professional development.

About half the respondents opted to keep the half-day format for professional development.

However, Cregger reports that a "small but articulate group" representing about four percent of those responding feel that teacher training should take place during the summer, in the evening or during weekends. Or even from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Parents cited the facts that other professionals are trained during off-hours, that using release days for parent-teacher conferences is extremely tough on working parents who have no flexibility, that precious school hours are lost forever.

Winchester School Committee Chair Jerilyn Heinold agreed that because so many parents work, they should have the option of scheduling evening conferences.

As for Reading's random half-days and no-days - termed by one teacher "all-day early release days" - we, of course, can't speak for the adults who have to be in the center of town, the merchants who have to live in the center of town and the police who have to deal with it all. But we think we know what they're thinking.

Early release days: Dangerous rites of passage or the divine right of teachers? "Criminal" because of kid attitudes and parents out of control or fundamental to the quality of education?

How do your schools handle early release? What do you think?

"The Paper" - Short Takes

"The Paper" Starring Michael Keaton, Glenn Close, Marisa Tomei, Randy Quaid, Robert Duvall. Directed by Ron Howard. Produced by Brian Grazer, Frederick Zollo. Written by David Koepp, Stephen Koepp. Rated R.

It's the adrenaline rush, stupid.

In The Paper, director Ron Howard captures the most addictive substance to be found in any newsroom. He also richly details the eccentrics who make their living chasing stories, as well as the tarnished romances that suffer under the strain of long hours and a nearly neurotic dedication to work.

The film chronicles 24 hours beneath the shadow of The Sun, a major New York tabloid. The plot (mostly) revolves around Michael Keaton's metro editor, a twitching neuro-mass of caffeine-propelled energy. His pregnant wife (Marisa Tomei) was a star reporter on the scrappy Sun, but is now hugely pregnant and anxiously watching from the sidelines.

Director Howard picks up on the obvious affection shared by this couple, but he doesn't hedge with reality. Keaton can stare past the top of his ever-present can of Coke and see his future in the next room. His chain-smoking editor, played with gruff integrity by Robert Duvall, is now facing prostate cancer on his own, having driven away his wife and daughter years before. Duvall's life was always about getting the story, and Keaton knows he's not much different.

It is the use of sharp reality slicing through a manic and witty plot that makes this newspaper film on par with the Howard Hawks' 1940 classic, "His Girl Friday." The journalists at the Sun have a had-edged sense of humor and a firm grip on the facts. They know exactly where they work, and are not above poking fun at the penile implant stories so graphically illustrated in their paper.

The crazed, paranoid columnist played by Randy Quaid is not as much of a reality stretch as you'd think, but the film doesn't give fair shrift to the paper's one power-wielding woman. Glenn Close, in yet another thankless role, is a bean-counting managing editor who can be quite the witch. Close does a remarkable job in instilling this fierce woman with a passion, even if it is sometimes misdirected. However, the movie makes it clear that Close's male colleagues can leave a trail of ink stains in their ambitious wakes, but such traits are just too, too ungainly in a woman.

The movie is pumped with enough sparkle and enlightening performances to bypass this misstep, as well as the ending's heightened dramatics. The screenwriters, one of whom is a senior editor at Time magazine, gleefully deflate the pomposity of the New York Sentinel, a barely-disguised New York Times. Spalding Gray is arrogance personified as a managing editor hoping to lure Keaton aboard to cover the neighborhood news so well represented in the Sun's pages.

Keaton, however, is more interested in beating out his competition for a cover story about two black teens who may have been falsely arrested. Their fate becomes his raison d'etre - at least until deadline. If you've never seen a news hound at work, it's a fascinating process, one good enough to "stop the presses." Don't worry, Howard makes better use of this cliche than I do.

Naked Gun 33 1/3: The Final Insult brings back Leslie Nielsen as the well-meaning, amazingly lucky Detective Drebin. Pulled out of retirement when terrorist Fred Ward threatens the Academy Awards, he is set free to successfully skewer that pretentious annual egofest. The laughs have certainly been diluted since the first "Naked Gun" movie, but this has more punch than you'd expect, considering we know the routines all too well. Rated PG-13.  1/2

D2: The Mighty Ducks reduced an ingenuous family film to a weak copycat. In the original, extremely likable "Ducks" movie, Emilio Estevez coached a rag tag band of inner city kids to a local championship. These kids are now representing the USA in the junior Goodwill Games and Estevez is caught up in the trappings of national stardom. Huh? It is pleasant enough and follows the formula, so the kiddies will be entertained, but parents may want to bring along a magazine. Rated PG. * 1/2

The Ref stars Boston native Denis Leary as a jewel thief who picks an argumentative, hateful couple as his hostages on a hapless Christmas eve. Judy Davis and Kevin Spacey play the couple with hilarious mutual loathing, matched only by Leary's rapid-fire, angry delivery as he finds himself playing at marriage counselor instead of desperate criminal. The movie has a funny, cynical bite to it that nearly compensates for an ending straight out of a Hollywood marketing meeting. Rated R.  1/2

Guarding Tess stars a prickly Shirley MacLaine in a sentimental comedy based on the relationship of a former First Lady and the head of a Secret Service contingent assigned to protect her. Nicolas Cage is his usual, competent self as the body guard, but MacLaine carries this predictable film as a sharp-tongued, feisty manipulator living on memories and dignity. Rated PG-13.  1/2

MARISA TOMEI AND MICHAEL KEATON are among the front-page cast of Imagine Entertainment's "The Paper," a comedy-drama about work and marriage set against the backdrop of a big-city newspaper, directed by Ron Howard.

What's Eating Gilbert Grape? stars Johnny Depp as a young man trying to keep his dysfunctional family together at the expense of his own needs. Awakened emotionally by free spirit Juliette Lewis, Depp's performance is captivating and touching as he becomes aware of the world outside his unhealthy, dependent family. Director Lasse Hallstrom paints this unusual story with quiet humor and a patina of sadness that imbues it with unusual depth. Leonardo DiCaprio is nothing short of amazing as Gilbert's lively, retarded brother and Darlene Cates is unforgettable as his 500-pound mother. Rated PG-13. ****

Angie is an unusual film that sets you up for a comedic love story, then waltzes you off in another direction. Geena Davis is a thirtysomething unwed mother who shocks her boyfriend and relatives by refusing marriage and taking up with the charismatic Stephen Rea. Instead of an urban fairy tale about romantic love, this is about emotional growth and that circle a woman completes when she has a child. These thought-provoking themes are handled with sparkling, intelligent humor that keeps this entertaining flick bouncing along. Rated R.  1/2

Reality Bites is a comedy aimed at the twentysomething dubbed Generation X by the popular media. In one of her best roles, Winona Ryder stars as a documentary filmmaker torn between laid back musician Ethan Hawke and Yuppie TV producer Ben Stiller. She is part of an educated foursome who cope with a lack of work by playing at McJobs, getting high and watching "The Brady Bunch." Though the dialogue is sometimes self-indulgent, this comedy captures an attitude rife with humor and unexpected cynicism. ***

In the Name of the Father is based on the actual incarceration of a Northern Irish family for a pub bombing they didn't commit - and the London police knew it. The political content alone will raise your hackles, but Daniel Day-Lewis is riveting as the son thrown into prison with his father, Pete Postlethwaite. Emma Thompson is convincing as the attorney who pushes for the truth, but Day-Lewis gives the most intense performance of his career. Too bad some of the details are a bit sketchy. Rated R.  1/2

"Taking astronomy to the people"

The North Shore Amateur Astronomy club is "Taking Astronomy to the People." The NSAAC takes pleasure in sponsoring "Astronomy Day" on Saturday, April 16, with activities for every member of the family taking place at four sites on the north shore.

Rain or shine programs will be held at the Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield, Merrimack College in Andover, The Peabody Institute Library in Danvers and at Salem State College in Salem.

At Merrimack College, NSAAC members will offer continuous presentations on amateur astronomy, digital imaging demonstrations using a CCD camera and computer, and weather permitting, observing through the college's 20-inch Richey-Chretien telescope.

The program will run from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Science and Engineering Building, Route 114 in Andover. The program is free to the public.

At Salem State College, viewers will enjoy an introduction to amateur astronomy and slide presentation of "A Guide to the Spring Sky." The college observatory's 12-inch Classical Cassegrain telescope will be in use, weather permitting. Reservations for the Salem State program are requested, at telephone number 741-6236.

The lecture portion of the program will be held in Lecture Hall 1, Room 426, Meier Hall at the college. This program will run from 7:30 to 10 p.m. and is also free to the public.

At The Peabody Institute Library, a daytime program will include an exhibit of telescopes, binoculars and star gazing accessories. NSAAC members will be on hand to share literature and knowledge with anyone who may be thinking of investing in an instrument to gaze at the stars. Weather permitting, club members will demonstrate the art of safe solar observing, and the public will be invited to look at the sun using a telescope equipped with a special solar filter.

The service, which will be led by Rabbi Barnard Stefansky and Rhoda D. Zagorsky, a noted local Healer, and assisted by the students of the Temple's Healing Touch class, continues a "new tradition" started in January of this year of the ancient and mystical aspect of Judaism and spiritual healing.

These healing services include music, readings, meditation and hands-on-healing. These healing services are being offered to anyone interested in receiving a gentle, caring and spiritual experience in a relaxed atmosphere of holiness and healing.

For further information, and also in case of inclement weather, please call Temple Shalom at (617) 396-3262 or Rhoda Zagorsky at (617) 395-5680. Temple Shalom is handicap accessible.

A short indoor program will focus on natural history and behavior, and then participants will go outside to view the woodcock's performance. Fee: $8 ($6/Massachusetts Audubon members). Pre-registration is required. For more information call the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary at (508) 887-9264.

DRIVERS NEEDED FOR RED CROSS

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay-North Area needs additional volunteer drivers to transport clients to medical appointments. It is especially difficult to find people to drive into Boston.

Drivers may volunteer weekly or monthly on a particular day, or simply be "on call." Vehicles are provided at both the Peabody and Melrose offices.

The American Red Cross strives to provide services which cannot be provided by other local agencies. The Transportation supplements the local rides that many Councils on Aging offer by taking clients outside of the community and into Boston. However; many volunteers are needed to maintain this program.

Please call the Volunteer Office at (508) 531-2280 or (617) 665-1351.

More than 95% of Minuteman's biotechnology graduates over the past three ears found employment as technicians with responsibilities in such areas as cell culture, downstream processing and product formulation.

Minuteman will be offering its new environmental technology program for the first time during the 1994-95 school year. Graduates of the program will be qualified for a variety of tasks including sampling of air, water and soil; reading gauges; inspecting and repairing valves and pumps; and the fabrication of basic equipment. Massachusetts has one of the largest concentrations of environmental firms and employees of any state in the union.

Further information, including application materials, may be obtained from Minuteman's Community Education Office, which may be reached at (617) 861-7150.

MASSACHUSETTS SOCIETY OF GENEALOGISTS MEET

Latest technology in new CT scanner

As medical technology changes in the United States, the result is evident in medical diagnosis and treatment. For over 20 years, the Computed Tomography (CT scan) has been an extremely valuable piece of diagnostic medical equipment, aiding physicians in seeing areas of the human body that previously could be viewed only through surgery.

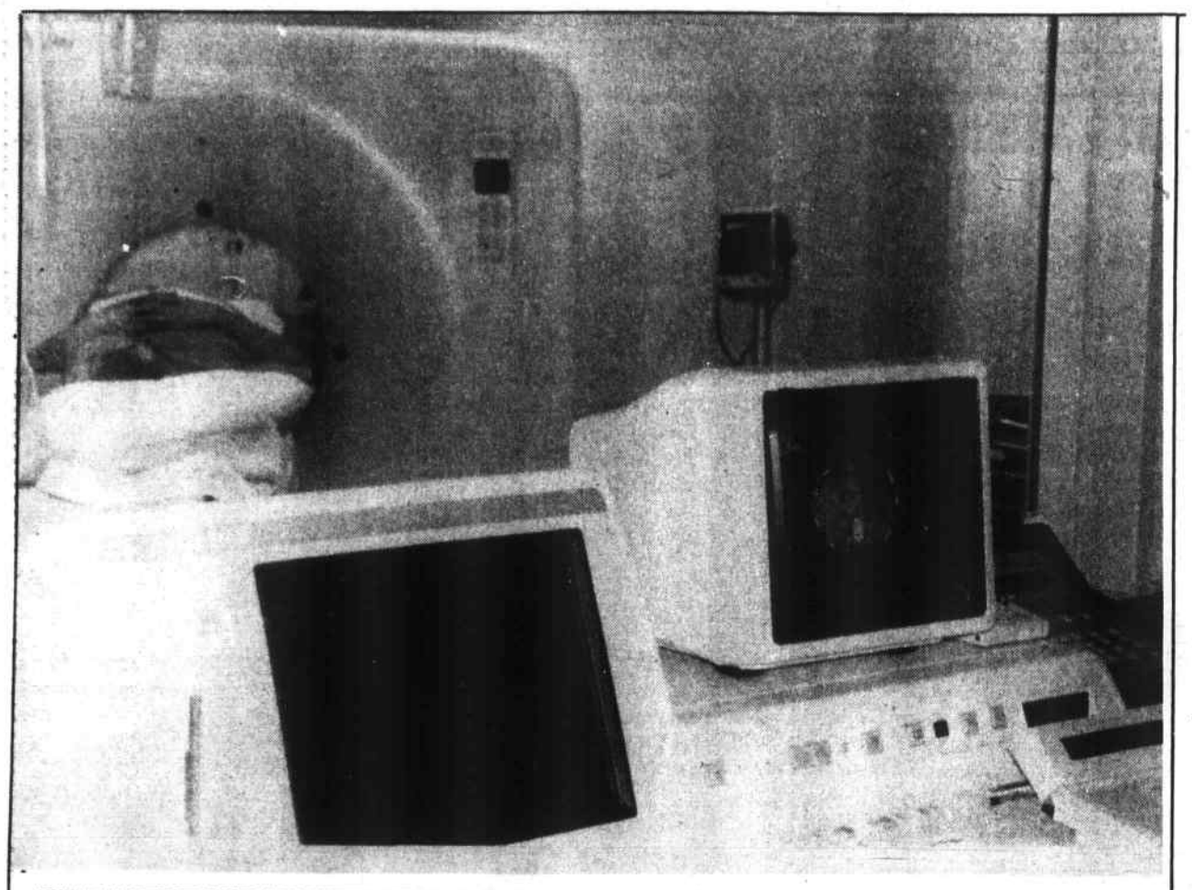

To help better serve its patients, Melrose-Wakefield Hospital recently upgraded its CT scan abilities with the purchase of a new CT scanner that is the latest and most advanced technology available. "The new generation of CT scan has amazing capabilities," says Melrose-Wakefield Hospital CT Scan Manager Mark Nussdorf, R.T.R. "Because the highly technical CT scanner includes special scanning capabilities, it can perform continuous scans with virtually no interruptions in between.

"For patients the new machine means quicker scans," he adds, "as well as less invasive studies, adding to patient comfort. It also means faster results for physicians."

The CT scan has eliminated the need for lengthy and uncomfortable tests and long waiting periods for results. Unlike a conventional x-ray, which views the body from only one angle and provides outlines of organs, the CT scanner produces cross-sectional images of the body by revolving an x-ray tube around the patient. A computer reconstructs what the scanner sees and provides a distinct image on film.

CT scans are commonly used to diagnose head and spine problems, to determine the severity of strokes, or to pinpoint bleeding or blood clots. It may also be used to determine the extent of internal trauma, or to evaluate the extent of malignancies or infections involving the chest or abdomen.

The MWH CT scan staff sees approximately 25 patients daily. The new unit is located on the first floor of the hospital.

THE MELROSE-WAKEFIELD HOSPITAL recently upgraded its CT scan abilities with the purchase of this new CT scanner that is the latest and most advance technology available.

Return of the Big Apple Circus April 7 - May 8

The Children's Museum proudly presents The Big Apple Circus, America's classical one-ring entertainment extravaganza. The all new production, "Carnevale in Venice" opens April 7th for 52 performances through May 8th.

This marks the ninth year for the Big Apple Circus in Boston which will feature a new, fully heated 2,000-seat big top located at The Fan Pier on Northern Avenue in Boston.

"Carnevale In Venice" recreates the magic and romance of Venice during its most festive season, Carnevale. Circus-goers will be whisked away to Venice, as the circus ring is transformed into the fames Piazza San Marco and the Big Apple Circus Company becomes a traveling 18th century commedia dell'arte troupe.

"Carnevale in Venice" will team the Big Apple Circus resident company with an international roster of the world's most exciting circus acts including China's award-winning Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe.
